KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP) — President-elect Richard M. Nixon, relaxing today in island solitude, intends to make unity in a divided nation a keynote theme of his Republican administration. But the plans for achieving this aim are more methodical than dramatic.

The most important single thread in this effort is summed up in one word: communication. Nixon stressed it constantly in the more philosophical speeches of his campaign. Now he is considering how best to attain it. Nixon was resting today on small, privately owned island in the Bahamas. He sunned himself and read in privacy on Mermaid Beach in the Grand Cay group of the Bahama Islands, 140 miles northeast of Key Biscayne.

Nixon flew there Monday by Coast Guard helicopter, with no advance announcement, accompanied only by his friend, C. G. Rebozo, and his Secret Service guards. He spent the night on the island, owned by Robert Abplanalp, a Bronxville, N.Y., businessman.

Nixon planned to fly back to Key Biscayne later in the day. Ronald L. Zeigler, Nixon's spokesman, said he expected the president-elect, who plans to fly back to New York Wednesday, would return to Florida for either Thanksgiving or Christmas, perhaps both.

Zeigler denied reports that Nixon and the Secret Service were dissatisfied with Key Biscayne for lack of privacy or security. He said the resort is very satisfactory to the president-elect and the men guarding him.

On other points Zeigler said: He does not anticipate an announcement for some weeks on who will represent the United States at the Paris negotiations on Vietnam in the Nixon administration.

There will be an announcement Thursday on plans for the wedding of Julie Nixon and David Eisenhower, grandson of the former president.

When he returns to work on the transition of government, Nixon is expected to have more meetings in a unity-seeking pattern he already has set, with leaders from various segments of American society.

He held such sessions in New York Friday, meeting with a businessman, Frederick Keppel, then a union president, George Meany, then a Negro leader, Whitney Young of the national Urban League.

His inaugural address on Jan. 20 is expected to stress the unity quest. The first broad outlines of that speech are taking shape as Nixon and a handful of aides relax in the sun.

Nixon also sees communication through the press, and directly to the nation through television, as important elements in the unification effort.

He is pondering now the best manner in which to deal with the news media, has promised an open administration and one in which policymakers will be accessible for public statements. He has sought out the opinions of newsmen on this phase of his planning.

The national unity effort also is a factor in his consideration of selections to the Cabinet. It will, Nixon has pledged, include Democrats.

Nixon aides indicate that the effort to make Cabinet choices will help enhance a sense of unity accounts for the moratorium on appointments outside the immediate White House staff.

VAN BUREN -- An Oran man, Paul Jalter, Jr., 46, was taken to the Veterans Hospital in Poplar Bluff for treatment of a gunshot wound in his left leg, sustained in a hunting accident at 7 p.m.

The highway patrol headquarters at Willow Springs reported that Jalter was apparently hit by a ricocheted bullet from the gun of Bill Cox, who owned the farm on which Jalter was hunting.

The state patrol gave this account of the shooting: Cox was holding four men at gun point, who he charged were spotlighting deer on his farm. When they left in a pickup truck, he fired shots at the truck tires.

Sirhan Trial Eyed for TV

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Unless the defense or prosecution objects, closed circuit television will be used to accommodate an overflow crowd of newsmen at the trial of Sirhan Bishara Sirhan on charges of slaying Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

Judge Herbert V. Walker of Superior Court, who will preside at the trial, made the disclosure Monday. He said he will hold a hearing, probably next week, to see if there are any objections.

The defense, at the same hearing, is expected to ask another postponement. The trial now is scheduled to start Dec. 9.

Sirhan, under heavy guard since Kennedy's assassination just after proclaiming victory in California's June presidential primary, is to be tried in Courtroom 107. This was chosen so Sirhan, 24, a Jordanian, can be taken from his 13th floor jail cell without being escorted through any public section of the building.

Workmen have installed steel plates over the windows. The courtroom seats only 75, and Judge Walker said there have been more than 100 requests from "responsible news media" for the 35 seats available for newsmen.

The closed-circuit TV camera would be concealed in a fake airconditioning box. Its view would take in everything but the jury. The camera would be the automatic type used in commercial surveillance. Sight and sound would be piped to a room with seats for about 80 accredited newsmen. The general public would not see the closed-circuit showing.

Rusk Confers in Lisbon

LISBON (AP) — U.S. Secretary of State Dean Rusk conferred with Portuguese officials today although still suffering from an upper respiratory infection.

Rusk, who was sick in bed over the weekend in Spain, arrived from Madrid Monday and met this morning with Foreign Minister Franco Nogueira. He was to talk later today with the new prime minister, Marcello Caetano, but declined a luncheon Nogueira planned for him.

The U.S. Secretary was to return to Washington in the afternoon. It was believed Rusk and the Portuguese discussed Portugal's policy in Africa and the status of U.S. military bases in the Iberian peninsula and the Azores.

The United States and Spain have been discussing renewal of agreements for the U.S. bases in Spain. The U.S. Air Base in the Portuguese Azores is also operating under an agreement which has expired.

Dirksen Enters Hospital

LIVINGSTON, N.J. (AP) — Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, R-Ill., has checked into St. Barnabas Medical Center here for a "few days for a checkup," the hospital disclosed today.

The 72-year-old Senate minority leader underwent a full battery of undisclosed tests following his arrival at the hospital Monday afternoon, a hospital spokesman said.

He declined to indicate why Dirksen, who is staying in a $70-a-day suite in the hospital's executive suite, decided to come to St. Barnabas.

However, the hospital has the nation's largest hyperbaric (high pressure) oxygen chamber. This unit has been used in the treatment of lung disorders, particularly emphysema, from which Dirksen has long suffered.

The spokesman would not comment on whether treatments in the chamber are scheduled.

A nurse on his floor said the senator was "very friendly, but very tired."

Strike Sends Patients Home

NEW YORK (AP) — Thousands of mental patients were being sent home or transferred today because of a strike by a New York City hospital workers' union.

Creedmoor State Hospital in Queens, which normally houses 6,300 patients, was half empty, and only half of its staff of 1,500 was on duty.

Other hospitals targeted for strikes by the end of the week, including Bronx State Hospital and Manhattan State Hospital, were being partially evacuated.

One report said the walkout might spread to Rockland State Hospital at Orangeburg.

The Creedmoor strike began Monday. Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller denounced it as a "union power play" that made sick people "the pawns."

Slow Start Likely in Congress While Nixon Gets Program Set

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 91st Congress, convening Jan. 3, is expected to get off to a slow start while waiting for Richard M. Nixon to take office and submit his legislative program.

One exception could be an attempt to obtain Senate ratification of a treaty designed to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons.

Democratic leaders also may try to win Senate confirmation of some recent appointments made by President Johnson after the 90th Congress adjourned in October.

At the start of a new Congress, especially when there is a change at the White House, the legislative processes move more slowly. Pending legislation does not carryover and members generally mark time until the new president submits specific proposals although they could

ANNISTON - A mother and her two daughters burned to death in a fire that destroyed their home early today here.

Mrs. Sondra Higgins, 19, and her daughters Kimberly Ann, 6 months old, and Della Lee, 2, perished in the flames that leveled their seven-room frame house on the John Clevidence farm.

Norman Higgins, the father, who was sleeping in another bedroom, suffered burns to his face, shoulders and back. He also suffered cuts to his face and hands. He is a patient in Missouri Delta Community Hospital today in Sikeston.

Higgins said he thought the fire was caused by the coal stove. He said he filled the stove at about 10 p.m. Monday before retiring. He awoke at about 12:30 a.m. today choking on smoke.

"The house was completely on fire, so I broke the window of the bedroom and ran around the side of the house and broke the window in her bedroom,"

Higgins said. A dining room separated his bedroom from hers. The children slept in the same bedroom with their mother. The stove was in an adjoining room.

The flames were too intense for him to save his wife and children, so he went to Clevidence house for help.

The East Prairie Fire Department was called at 1:50 a.m., but the house was almost ready to fall when they arrived. The Charleston Fire Department was called later to assist in extinguishing the burning embers and search for the bodies. The bodies of both children were found on the bed springs of their beds. Mrs. Higgins body was found lying beside one of the children's beds.

Higgins is employed on the Clevidence farm. The Higgins house was located on the east side of Highway 105 just south of the Anniston intersection of Highways 77 and 105.

Mrs. Higgins was born March 23, 1948 in Canolou. Della Lee J. C. Abernathy, St. Louis; four was born Jan. 25, 1966, in sisters, Mrs. Waymon Brown, Rockford, Ill. Kimberly Ann was born May 12, 1968, in East Glen Allen; Mrs. Jimmy Bowden and Miss Dorothy Abernathy, both of Rockford; maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Bishop, Canolou; paternal grandfather, Oscar Abernathy, St. Louis; and paternal grandmother, Mrs. Tom Vicars of Canolou.

The bodies are at the McMikle Funeral Home in East Prairie.

Other officers are J.C. Newcomer, assistant postmaster from Bloomfield, commissioner, T. Frank Waltz, Jr., treasurer and Vice Presidents Earl Jarvis, Sikeston, T. A. Brown, Jr., Kennett, and Thurston Hill Puxico.

Reports will be reviewed from each of the operating committees, in preparation for the annual report to the Boy Scouts of America. Judge Marshall Craig, a past council president, will represent the report of the a nominating committee.

Representatives, members at large and executive board members from 14 counties served by the council will attend.

A highlight of the meeting will be the election of officers to head the council in 1969.

Charge Man Pulls Gun on Boy Scout Council Election Monday

CAPE GIRARDEAU - Joe Welborn, Bloomfield, president of the Southeast Missouri Council, Boy Scouts of America, will call to order the 38th Annual Meeting of the council at 7 p.m. Monday, at the Holiday Inn.

Surviving are her husband, Norman Higgins; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Abernathy, Rockford, Ill.; four brothers, Kenneth, Larry, and Robert Abernathy, all of Rockford, and Three charges were filed early today on a man who pulled pistol on a Sikeston policeman at the Park-A-Lot Drive Inn parking lot on East Malone.

Seamon Hunter McClain, 21, 822 Agnes St., was charged with displaying a dangerous and deadly weapon, peace disturbance, and destroying private property.

McClain had been trying to get into the restaurant, which had just closed. He yelled and kicked the door till he broke the door lock before police arrived.

Patrolman Jack C. Patterson was the first officer to arrive. He met McClain who went to the trunk of his car and got a pistol, police reported. Patterson said he was going for something and told him to stop and put his hands on the car.

Instead, McClain turned on Patterson with the gun in his hand and pulled the hammer back, Patterson said. Patterson, then, jumped back behind the police car door and pulled his service revolver. McClain then threw his gun on the car.

Patterson searched McClain and handcuffed him. Mrs. E. B. Woods, operator of the Park-A-Lot signed complaints of peace disturbance by loud and profane language and destruction of private property against McClain.

In other police activity, Wilson S. McMullin, 519 Vernon St., was charged Monday with running a stop sign on North street.

Grey Johnson, Lilbourn, acting foreman at the Sikeston High School field house construction site, reported a $600 welder was stolen during the weekend from a room in the building.

James H. Moore, owner of Moore's Hardware Store, 118 North New Madrid St., reported to police Monday that a complete inventory of a break in that was discovered Oct. 11, showed merchandise valued at $459 missing. Items had been taken from a storage area. Insulated jackets, underwear, fishing tackle and bicycles were among the items missing.

Anderson Cook, 1403½ Washington St., reported to police Monday that one of his tires was slashed and the antenna of his car radio was broken Thursday night while his car was parked at Imperial Bowling Lanes, or Sikeston Senior High School.

John Scott, 711 Moore St., reported to police at 4:30 p.m. Monday that his boy's gold colored bicycle is missing.

Relief Evident as Million N.Y. School Children Return to Class

NEW YORK (AP) - A million of 79 white teachers from the predominantly Negro and Puerto Rican Ocean Hill district that led today and most of the bitterness of the prolonged teacher strike appeared to be waning.

The attitude of most parents and teachers was expressed by a Bronx mother, who said simply: "Thank God."

Most teachers, those who were on strike and the 8,000-odd who taught during the strike, went in today hopeful that the wounds left by the strike, would be quickly healed.

The United Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO reported several "problem spots" this morning, with parents and other community residents entering schools, apparently to object to the return of the union teachers.

But things were reported going smoothly in the Brooklyn ghetto district around which the dispute swirled for more than two months.

It was the third time since the strike began Sept. 9 that the predominantly white, 55,000-member UFT had gone back to the classroom. Two earlier settlements broke down and the walkout was renewed.

Upon word of the UFT ratification, a state trustee officially took over operation of the controversial Ocean Hill-Brownsville experimentally decentralized school district in Brooklyn.

Two Allied Operations Take Toll of Red Lives, Prisoners

SAIGON (AP) - U.S. and South Vietnamese troops have killed 181 more Viet Cong and North Vietnamese and taken more than 200 prisoners or suspects in two operations 450 miles apart, military spokesmen reported today.

One battleground was south of Da Nang, where the Vietnamese area commander says the Communist command has started its winter offensive for South Vietnam's northern provinces. The other was 115 miles southwest of Saigon, where a big South Vietnamese force is trying to make a dent in a Viet Cong stronghold near the Cambodian border.

South Vietnamese headquarters also reported three provincial capitals and six district towns shelled by the enemy during the night and two terrorist incidents. A spokesman said these attacks killed 29 civilians and 12 Vietnamese soldiers and wounded 72 civilians and one soldier.

On the political front, the Saigon government appeared moving slowly toward a decision to send a delegation to the Paris peace talks. Some sources close to the government indicated President Nguyen Van Thieu has decided he has to end his boycott of the talks. These

A motion for change of judge filed today in magistrate court in the case of state versus George Garner, Cairo, Ill., was sustained, and Judge Tom Brown of Charleston was named to preside at a preliminary hearing on three felony charges against Garner.

The hearing had been set for today in magistrate court in Sikeston before Judge M. E. Montgomery.

The felony charges against Garner are: Possession of a bomb or bombing device, possession of burglary tools, and carrying a concealed weapon.

Two misdemeanor charges against Garner - permitting an unauthorized person to operate his motor vehicle, and possession of a Missouri vehicle license not issued to him - were dismissed in magistrate court today.

The misdemeanor charges already have been refiled in circuit court in Benton, Scott county prosecutor Fielding Potashnick said.

The attorney for Garner filed a motion in circuit court to quash the search warrant used to obtain the information which led to the filing of two of the felony charges. The motion had been set for hearing last Thursday, but Judge Marshall Craig refused to hear it. It has been set for hearing Dec. 13, in Benton.

Garner was arrested Oct. 19, along with Billy Sullivan, Mounds, Ill., and Maurice Mitchell, Metropolis, Ill., in an automobile west of Sikeston on Highway 114. The car was searched later and found to contain four guns, explosives and burglary tools.

In other cases heard today before Judge Montgomery, assistant prosecuting attorney Tom Gilmore represented the state.

Roland Waters, route two, Sikeston, was fined $100 and costs and sentenced to 60 days in jail on a charge of driving while intoxicated. Waters also was sentenced to 60 days in jail and committed on a charge of driving without a valid operator's license.

Mississippi county sheriff W. J. "Pedro" Simmons reported that his wife who runs the license office in Charleston said Webb tried to obtain license to the car.

Simmons also charged that he had had difficulties working with the new police chief. He reportedly said his troubled relations with Webb began when Webb stopped two boys riding a bicycle shortly after coming to Charleston and telling one of them to walk. One of the youths was related to the sheriff. The sheriff said there is no city ordinance prohibiting dual riding on bicycles.

Webb did not reply to the charges last night, but intends to do so in another meeting at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday night before the city council.

Hill charged that the State Highway Patrol was favoring one wrecker service over others in Charleston, but little discussion resulted.

election represented the greatest example of ticket splitting in Missouri's history, with Nixon carrying the state by some 23,000 votes and Democratic Gov. Warren E. Hearnes winning re-election by more than 380,000.

He noted Missouri was the last state this year to report the results of its presidential voting - not until the Sunday after the election.

"I think this is a poor way to run the store," he said in a speech prepared for the Independence Rotary Club.

"I have never liked 'cliff hanger' elections and it seems most urgent to me for Missouri to improve its present system. It was good enough for horse and buggy days, but not for modern times."

Kirkpatrick is secretary of a special election laws study commission and he recommended that it be made a permanent agency because the job of modernizing obsolete election laws is so vast a complete report cannot be submitted to the 1969 legislature.

He also recommended a separate study of a presidential preference primary, although noting a primary in May would present some problem.

"For one thing, it would inevitably bring a start to primary campaigning sometime before Christmas, which is hardly an attractive prospect for either the candidates or the public. Then, with tickets chosen in May, we would have a long, long general election campaign-six months. This is not a pleasant prospect, either."

One of the initial tasks of Congress will be to hold a joint session Jan. 6 to count the Electoral College votes to make official the election of Nixon and his vice presidential running mate, Spiro T. Agnew.

If past practice is followed, Johnson will send his farewell State of the Union message to Congress rather than deliver it in person. Then Nixon, soon after his inauguration, will appear before a joint session to submit a broad outline of his program.

On the political front, the Saigon government appeared moving slowly toward a decision to send a delegation to the Paris peace talks. Some sources close to the government indicated President Nguyen Van Thieu has decided he has to end his boycott of the talks. These

A motion for change of judge filed today in magistrate court in the case of state versus George Garner, Cairo, Ill., was sustained, and Judge Tom Brown of Charleston was named to preside at a preliminary hearing on three felony charges against Garner.

The hearing had been set for today in magistrate court in Sikeston before Judge M. E. Montgomery.

The felony charges against Garner are: Possession of a bomb or bombing device, possession of burglary tools, and carrying a concealed weapon.

Two misdemeanor charges against Garner — permitting an unauthorized person to operate his motor vehicle, and possession of a Missouri vehicle license not issued to him — were dismissed in magistrate court today. The misdemeanor charges already in Benton, Scott county prosecutor Fielding Potashnick said.

Margaret E. Stevenson Dies

Margaret Elizabeth Stevenson, 228 W. Gladys, 74, died at 7 a.m. today in Missouri Delta Community hospital.

She was born Sept. 29, 1894 in New Douglas, Ill.

She married Presley H. Stevenson Nov. 27, 1924. He survives.

Other survivors are one daughter, Mrs. Sam Ebeling, St. Louis; five sisters, Mrs. W. E. Lemons, Springfield, Ill.; Mrs. W. A. Johnson, Morehouse; Mrs. J. W. Marshall, Sikeston; Mrs. Charles Albright, Morehouse; and Mrs. Floyd Albright, Glendale, Ariz.; and two grandchildren.

Services will be Thursday at 2 p.m. in the First Baptist church with the Pastor, Rev. James Hackney officiating.

Burial will be in the City cemetery with Welch Funeral Home in charge.

Police Chief to Reply to Charges in Charleston

CHARLESTON — Ed Hill, Charleston radio announcer, read charges against police chief Dolph Webb in a meeting of the city council last night.

Among the charges was an allegation that Webb attempted to obtain title to a 1949 Chevrolet impounded in June, after Robert Smith, the driver, was arrested. The owner of the car apparently has not been determined.

Mississippi county sheriff W. J. "Pedro" Simmons reported that his wife who runs the license office in Charleston said Webb tried to obtain license to the car.

Simmons also charged that he had had difficulties working with the new police chief. He reportedly said his troubled relations with Webb began when Webb stopped two boys riding a bicycle shortly after coming to Charleston and telling one of them to walk. One of the youths was related to the sheriff. The sheriff said there is no city ordinance prohibiting dual riding on bicycles.

Webb did not reply to the charges last night, but intends to do so in another meeting at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday night before the city council.

Hill charged that the State Highway Patrol was favoring one wrecker service over others in Charleston, but little discussion resulted.

He is a patient in Missouri Delta Community Hospital today in Sikeston.

Higgins said he thought the fire was caused by the coal stove. He said he filled the stove at about 10 p.m. Monday before retiring. He awoke at about 12:30 a.m. today choking on smoke.

"The house was completely on fire, so I broke the window of the bedroom and ran around the side of the house and broke the window in her bedroom,"

Higgins said.

A dining room separated his bedroom from hers. The children slept in the same bedroom with their mother. The stove was in an adjoining room.

The flames were too intense for him to save his wife and children, so he went to Clevidence house for help.

The East Prairie Fire Department was called at 1:50 a.m., but the house was almost ready to fall when they arrived. The Charleston Fire Department fought all day Sunday around the town of Dien Ban found another 103 North Vietnamese bodies, a spokesman said.

He said this raised to 305 the number of North Vietnamese troops killed by South Vietnamese infantrymen and American aircraft and artillery in the fighting Sunday and early Monday.

In the same general area, a U.S. Marine and Vietnamese civil action team fought off a small attack and killed five more North Vietnamese. Seven Marines were wounded; South Vietnamese casualties were described as light.

Five more U.S. Marines were killed and six wounded in an ambush Monday night just below the demilitarized zone, between the Marine bases at Dong Han and Cam Lo.

CAPE GIRARDEAU — Joe Welborn, Bloomfield, president of the Southeast Missouri Council, Boy Scouts of America, will call to order the 38th Annual Meeting of the council at 7 p.m. Monday, at the Holiday Inn.

Representatives, members at large and executive board members from 14 counties served by the council will attend.

A highlight of the meeting will be the election of officers to head the council in 1969.

Other officers are J.C. Newcomer, assistant postmaster from Bloomfield, commissioner, T. Frank Waltz, Jr., treasurer and Vice Presidents Earl Jarvis, Sikeston, T. A. Brown, Jr., Kennett, and Thurston Hill, Puxico.

Reports will be reviewed from each of the operating committees, in preparation for the annual report to the Boy Scouts of America. Judge Marshall Craig, a past council president, will represent the report of the a nominating committee.

Kirkpatrick Urges Absentee Speed-up

INDEPENDENCE, Mo. (AP) Secy. of State James C. Kirkpatrick recommended today Missouri modernize its election laws so absentee ballots could be counted with the regular ballots. Gov. Warren E. Hearnes winning re-election by more than 380,000.

He noted Missouri was the last state this year to report the results of its presidential voting not until the Sunday after the election.

"I think this is a poor way to run the store," he said in a speech prepared for the Independence Rotary Club.

"I have never liked 'cliff hanger' elections and it seems most urgent to me for Missouri to improve its present system. It was good enough for horse and buggy days, but not for modern times."

Kirkpatrick is secretary of a special election laws study commission and he recommended that it be made a permanent agency because the job of modernizing obsolete election laws is so vast a complete report cannot be submitted to the 1969 legislature.

He also recommended a separate study of a presidential preference primary, although noting a primary in May would present some problem.

"For one thing, it would inevitably bring a start to primary campaigning sometime before Christmas, which is hardly an attractive prospect for either the candidates or the public. Then, with tickets chosen in May, we would have a long, long general election campaign-six months. This is not a pleasant prospect, either."

Kirkpatrick said the Nov. 5 election represented the greatest example of ticket splitting in Missouri's history, with Republican Richard M. Nixon carrying the state by some 23,000 votes and Democratic Gov. Warren E. Hearnes winning re-election by more than 380,000.

At this meal the club will join other Rotary organizations in donating the price of a regular meal to the Rotary Foundation to provide fellowships people to study abroad.

Committee chairmen of the club will report on projects.

Relief Evident as Million N.Y. School Children Return to Class

NEW YORK (AP) — A million of 79 white teachers from the predominantly Negro and Puerto Rican Ocean Hill district led to the strike. A state watchdog committee has now been set up to oversee their return.

The attitude of most parents and teachers was expressed by a Bronx mother, who said simply: "Thank God."

Most teachers, those who were on strike and the 8,000-odd who taught during the strike, went in today hopeful that the wounds left by the strike, would be quickly healed.

The United Federation of Teachers, AFL-CIO reported several "problem spots" this morning, with parents and other community residents entering schools, apparently to object to the return of the union teachers.

But things were reported going smoothly in the Brooklyn ghetto district around which the dispute swirled for more than two months.

It was the third time since the strike began Sept. 9 that the predominantly white, 55,000-member UFT had gone back to the classroom. Two earlier settlements broke down and the walkout was renewed.

Upon word of the UFT ratification, a state trustee officially took over operation of the controversial Ocean Hill-Brownsville experimentally decentralized school district in Brooklyn.

It was the summary dismissal

Shanker still faces a charge of contempt under the state's Taylor Law which forbids strikes by public employees. He could receive up to 30 days in jail with the union fined $10,000 per strike day. The court hearing is not yet completed.

The strike, the longest teachers' walkout in the city's history, closed most of the city's 900 public schools for 36 school days and provoked racial and religious animosity between the Negro slums and the largely Jewish UFT.

In commenting on the strike's end, Mayor John V. Lindsay said: "I hope we can begin now to heal the divisions of the city's worst slums. Its population of 125,000 is 71 per cent Negro, 24 per cent Puerto Rican, 4 per cent white and 1 per cent Oriental.

Under the experiment a 19-member local governing board was given control how much control is a matter of dispute—of the district's eight schools and 8,000 pupils.

Last spring the district sought to transfer out of Ocean Hill a number of teachers it accused of sabotaging the decentralization experiment. Officially the UFT has been for decentralization but not at a rapid pace.

The charges against the teachers were rejected by a trial examiner but the district refused to reinstate the group, which by the start of this fall's term numbered 79.

The teachers struck on the opening day of the term, reported to schools for two days later that week and then struck again. Classes resumed for a second time Sept. 30 but were halted anew on Oct. 14.

CONSUMER PROTECTION

Consumer crusaders can flex their muscle when the Federal Trade Commission opens public hearings Tuesday, Nov. 12, in Washington on what the agency should do to enhance national consumer protection and education. The FTC decided to hold hearings after publication last summer of a report by the District of Columbia Consumer Protection Program. The report found that low-income buyers in the nation's capital were frequently deceived by merchants through sharp selling and credit practices.

The report listed 22 kinds of deception involved in consumer complaints. Most common was the "bait and switch" advertising technique. A low-priced item was advertised to lure the customer into the store, where he was pressured into buying a higher-priced article. Other kinds of deceptions include flase and misleading statements concerning the nature of products, services and guarantees, the use of fake contests for promotional purposes, and the sale of used merchandise as new. The FTC stressed that these techniques involved only a minority of District businessmen. More information is needed on the extent of unfair practices in other cities to complete a national picture.

The District report called for the establishment of state-operated trade commissions modeled on the FTC to solicit and analyze reports of unfair practices. At present the FTC lacks the manpower to police deceptive practices thoroughly. The report urged close cooperation between the mini-FTCs and neighborhood legal services.

Business interests are depicting the hearings as a publicity-seeking, anti-business show. But the resentment of ghetto consumers has contributed to some real spectaculars in Watts, Detroit, Newark and Washington. Sen. Warren G. Magnuson (D Wash.) argues in The Dark Side of the Marketplace (1968): "It seems undeniable that the scandalous gouging of minority groups by dishonest merchants and salesmen contributest to a potentially explosive situation in every ghetto in America and is one of many discontents leading to riots. This is a fact that has been too little recognized to explored."

LINCOLN'S GETTYSBURG ADDRESS - Delivered Nov. 19, 1863

Four score and seven years ago our fathers brought forth on this continent a new nation, conceived in liberty and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal.

Now we are engaged in a great civil war, testing whether that nation or any nation so conceived and so dedicated can long endure. We are met on a great battlefield of that war. We have come to dedicate a portion of that field as a final resting place of those who here gave their lives that the nation might live. It is altogether fitting and proper that we should do this.

But, in a larger sense, we cannot dedicate, we cannot consecrate, we cannot hallow this ground. The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here have consecrated it far above our poor power to add or detract. The world will little note nor long remember what we say here, but it can never forget what they did here. It is for us the living, rather, to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they who fought here have thus far so nobly advanced. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us, that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion; that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain; that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom, and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth.

THOSE BOMBING 'PAUSES'

While we hear the caterwauling of certain candidates about stopping the bombing in North Vietnam and the frantic search for peace for political reasons, we can't help but wonder how the fighting men at the battlefield must react to such talk.

Anyone who thinks that North Vietnam can be trusted should be reminded of the following:

Sen. Jack Miller of Iowa points to the past six truce periods:

1. 48 hours at Christmas, 1966. During the period there were 101 violations by the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong, resulting in 18 killed and 60 wounded on our side, including 3 Americans killed and 27 wounded.

2. New Year's, 1966-67. During this period there were 169 violations, resulting in 20 killed and 198 wounded on our side, including 14 Americans killed and 27 wounded.

3. Tet Holidays, 1967. During this period there were 338 violations, resulting in 30 killed and 198 wounded on our side, including 17 Americans killed and 158 wounded.

4. Christmas, 1967. During this period there were 118

violations, resulting in seven killed and 44 wounded on our side, including two Americans and 24 wounded.

5. New Year's, 1967-68. During this period there were 170 violations, resulting in 73 killed and 279 wounded on our side, including 27 Americans killed and 191 wounded.

6. Tet Holidays, 1968. During this period there were 2,707 killed 11,519 wounded on our side, including 920 Americans killed and 4,561 wounded -- plus 8,200 civilians killed and 22,000 wounded, and 623,000 civilians made refugees.

In face of these facts, it would be nothing short of suicide to put any trust whatsoever in the word of the Communist leaders, and it is time that we realize the only principle they understand is strength and the will power to make use of that strength.

SUNNY SIDE OF THE STREET

Shepherds in Palestine led a life of hardship. Wild beasts, extremes of temperature, deprivations of robbers, and a meager supply of food were among the factors which tended to make their task difficult. A shepherd carried a scrip containing a small amount of food, a sling and a staff. He also carried a sheepskin mantle, and a light tent, if he was far from home. His morning duty was to lead his flock to pasturage. He watched the sheep, guarding them and himself against attacks of such animals as bears, panthers, wolves, lions. He was obliged to hunt for a lost sheep until it was recovered. At nightfall, the shepherd returned to his fold with his flock. Upon arrival he checked each sheep. His duty was to watch the entrance to the fold throughout the night. It was to such a company of humble men that the first Christmas carol was sung.

The sound of church bells ringing on Christmas morning gave Charles Wesley, the great Methodist hymnist, the inspiration for one of the most popular Christmas hymns. After serving as organist at the holiday service, he went home and wrote "Hark! the Herald Angels Sing!" a carol that is now sung all over Christendom.

Say what you please about moral courage, the man who has too much of it is very unpopular.

Keeping pace with customer demands for natural gas is expensive business, says the American Gas Association. Local gas distribution companies are expected to spend nearly $1 billion in 1968 to extend their systems and replace older facilities.

Modern expressways offer motorists some of the most advanced auto safety techniques known to researchers -- absence of oncoming or cross traffic, wide lanes, paved shoulders, easy curves and reflective signs, pavement markings and delineators to guide the motorist on his way.

And yet, accidents still happen on them. To answer "why?" some safety experts point to the absence of oncoming or cross traffic, wide lanes, paved shoulders, easy curves and reflective signs, pavement markings and delineators to guide the motorist on his way.

Many expressways no doubt need improvement, but most traffic safety experts agree that the modern expressway is "a good road crowded with bad drivers."

According to the Maryland Traffic Safety Commission, one of the most frequent causes of lethal expressway accidents is "tailgating," with an added danger that is inherent in high-speed driving, "blindgating."

Tailgating, of course, is the practice of following the car in front of you so closely that if it stops suddenly, you can't stop in time to avoid hitting it. Blindgating can occur, however, even if you're not tailgating.

Blindgating means that you're not far enough behind the car ahead of you to anticipate an obstacle in its path. In a blindgating wreck, you don't hit the car ahead; you hit the car -- or other hazard -- that he swerved out of your lane to miss! You hit it because it usually is stopped and your closure rate is faster.

The problem, says the Commission, is that most drivers learned to drive under the "old rule" -- one car-length of following distance for every 10 mph of speed. Even worse, many drivers follow the rule blindly.

Most safety experts now advocate a flexible rule that would vary the following distance from one to three car lengths for every 10 mph of speed, depending on traffic conditions:

Allow one car length for every 10 mph in light traffic, only at speeds under 45 mph; two car lengths per 10 mph for moderate traffic at all speeds and three car lengths per 10 mph for heavy traffic. These rules apply for dry pavement conditions. For wet or slippery roads, add another car length per 10 mph.

And don't worry about cut-in drivers. They'll cost you a few seconds of driving time, but you won't be a blindgater... and you'll get where you're going.

William Feather, the Cleveland Ohio, house organ man, wonders:

"What prompts a man to drive a $5,000 car 10 miles out of his way to save 2 cents a gallon on gasoline?"

Simple, Mr. Feather. Same urge that makes a woman go the same distance to get a few extra trading stamps.

If your plans for the upcoming Thanksgiving Day weekend call for traveling by automobile, have your car
safety-checked and then drive
with due care and caution,
motorists were advised today by Colonel E. I. (Mike) Hockaday,
the Superintendent of the Missouri State Highway Patrol.

"Don't be delayed on your holiday trip by a mechanical breakdown," Hockaday warned.
"Check your car before starting your trip. It won't take a garage man or service station
attendant long to inspect the tires, headlights, signals, battery,
radiator, rear lights and windshield wipers and blades. A failure of any of these items
could spoil your plans."

The Patrol Superintendent
reminded drivers of the need to be extra alert for changing weather conditions over the Thanksgiving Day weekend. He noted that this is the time of the year when sudden snow or sleet
can quickly develop and turn a pleasant trip into a dangerous
one. Motorists were urged to prepare to adjust their driving to weather conditions.

Hockaday also recommended
the stopping for an occasional rest if the trip covers several hundred miles. Passengers and drivers can use the occasion for a freedom refreshment break and to stretch
their legs. Then everyone,

distrust people. They fear that if especially children, can resume

the trip less tired.

"If friends and relatives back
home are planning to see you Thanksgiving weekend, make sure the car you drive is in top mechanical condition, and make sure you drive with prudence
and extra care," he concluded.

Beginning to appear on the horizon, like the harvest moon is
the question, shall this generation witness the death or
the second birth of our nation?

FEAR: THE WALL
WORLD MUST RAZE
By Don Oakley

It was not strength but weakness that impelled the rulers of Russia to order the military occupation of Czechoslovakia.

It was the weakness born of fear--the fear that, unless it were stamped out with a ruthless,
overwhelming use of force, the
movement toward liberal economic reforms and political democracy in that small country
would gather increasing momentum, endangering Communist rule not only there
but in the other Eastern European satellites, and jeopardizing not only the external but even the internal security of Russia herself.

Fear is a factor in the actions of reactions of all nations, of course, including the United States. But there is a fundamental and
too-often-forgotten difference between the international policies of the U.S.S.R. and the U.S. It is no less than the difference between totalitarianism and individual liberty.

The Communists fear that if the people are left to themselves,

unguided by the firm hand of the party in every aspect of their lives, they will stray from the Marxist-Leninist straight and narrow and succumb to the seductive appeal of bourgeois
democracy and other such evils.

Americans fear and distrust Communists. They fear that if the aggressive and dictatorial nature of communism is not restrained, the safety and future
of the democratic way of life, in our own nation as well as in the developing nations, will be imperiled.

The one fear actually betrays
a lack of faith in the eternal truth of communism. The other fear sometimes seems to reveal an overestimation of its real power.

Confusing this fundamental distinction between the Soviet Union and the United States is the fact that intermixed with the fears of both and underlying the policies of both are certain considerations of national security, which are the same for Russia today as they were when
the Monroe Doctrine was promulgated.

Thus the "moral myopia," as Secretary of State Dean Rusk
calls it, of those who see no difference between Russia
sending troops into Czechoslovakia and the United States sending troops into the Dominican Republic, or Russia
intervening in Hungary and America intervening in Vietnam.

The cry of demonstrators in Prague--"Russians out of himself."

Czechoslovakia, Americans out
of Vietnam!"--is significant. So also is the reaction of one Moscow man in the street, as reported by a news service: "In human terms, I feel sorry for
what is happening to the people
there, but Czechoslovakia is our military outpost and we must defend it. That is the fate of small nations."

Were governments not governed by fear, the United States could disband NATO and Russia could break up the Warsaw Pact. Both countries,
confident of their own strength
and the rightness of their ideologies, could announce that they had no more need of allies,
satellites or military outposts
and that henceforth the only treaties they would make with other nations would be those of trade and nonmilitary aid. That aid would go not to regimes but
to peoples, who would be permitted to work out their own destinies as they saw fit.

Fear between nations will
not be banished in this century.
But if we cannot eliminate fear
today, neither can we permit it
to possess us, lest it blind us to the vision of a world that could be.

"There's only one thing

"What's that?" she asked.
"Well, if I try to kiss you in capsize." Quickly the girl remarked: "I can swim."

It must have hit rock bottom

AN UNSUCCESSFUL POLICY

The new administration and
new Congress will have a shining opportunity to phase out the unsuccessful and extremely costly program of foreign aid
which has been going on ever since the end of World War II.

During all these years the United States has been trying to buy the friendship of foreign nations. It has not worked.

France, once saved from communism largely by Marshall Plan assistance, follows a policy,
that is openly anti-American,
not only in Europe but everywhere else in the world.
India, which abandoned its
stated policy of non-alignment
and turned in desperation to the United States after the Chinese attack in 1962, used American-supplied arms chiefly against Pakistan instead.
Pakistan, which our country
regarded as a bulwark against communism, used the arms we supplied against India.

Yugoslavia and Poland have together received about $3 billion in aid from the U.S. But Yugoslavia still votes against the free world in the UN, and Poland has not loosened its ties
to the Warsaw Pact. Egypt sought U.S. assistance to feed its people and drew ever closer to Soviet Russia.

When a policy is proved unsuccessful and government should abandon it. For more than twenty years this country
has kept the multiplied billions flowing out in foreign aid, while
the nations benefiting from it
have either delivered stern
lectures on the immorality of attaching strings to that assistance or have simply acted against U.S. interests even as they spent our money. Foreign aid is a farce. It should be ended.

DREW PEARSON AND JACK ANDERSON SAY:
Panama's new government has Communist ties. Nevertheless U.S. state department recognizes regime; Junta leaders feared Arias would cut off their lucrative rackets

WASHINGTON--While the American people have been engrossed in their own election, the seeds of Castroism appear to have been planted in Panama, astride the canal zone, vital to the security of the United States.

A military junta, which the United States so frequently treats with benign approval, has now been recognized by the state department, apparently ignoring the fact that the new military leaders have had close ties with Latin American Communism.

The top military man, Col.
Omar Torrijos, was once a member of the people's party, a front for the Communist party, and the no. 2 man, Col. Boris Martinez, was once the Communist leader of students at the University of Panama.

Despite this, the state department last week extended
the new Panamanian government
official U.S. recognition.

What happened was that the new military dictators, knowing
the United States was busy with its own problems and had long frowned on Arnulfo Arias, the newly elected president,
proceeded to oust him on October 11, exactly 11 days after he had been sworn in a president.

Here is a play-by-play account
of what happened:

Last May Dr. Arias, twice before elected President of Panama, was elected for a third time, despite the flagrant stealing of ballots. In some cases, the political opposition raised the polling places armed with machine guns.

Despite this, Arnulfo Arias
won. He had the backing of a very heavy popular vote plus the support of the old Panamanian business families which have comprised the ruling Oligarchy.

Opposed to him were the National Guard, trained and equipped by the American agreement. The three troublesome guard officers were not transferred to Chile,

in Panamanian jungles for U.S.
Green Beret forces which have
top command did not carry out its promised shake-up.

Finally, President Arias acted himself. On Oct. 11 he ordered the transfer of the three efficient police forces in Latin America.

However, it also has a monopoly on Panama's bus
transportation, and controls the brothels, gambling houses, and Bolia. From long experience the guard knew that President Arias
would immediately cut off these lucrative concessions. It was reported well before his Oct. 1
inauguration, therefore, that a military coup was inevitable.

The first coup was attempted
on Sept. 26, four days before the inauguration. Another was tried on the afternoon of Sept.
29. Finally, on the evening of Sept. 29, President-elect Arias met in private home with the commander of the National Guard, Gen. Bolivar Vallarino,
where it was agreed that Gen.
Vallarino would not participate in a coup but would be moved to Washington as military attache. He could play an important part in the plans for building a new Panama Canal, it was agreed.

It was also agreed that the No.
2 man in the guard, Col. Jose Ricaurte Soler, leader of the Maria Pinilla, would replace
Vallarino as guard commander
for 45 days and then retire in favor of Col. Bolivar Urrutia.

However, the most important
agreement made at this secret meeting was that three troublemakers inside the national guard who had been organizing revolt would be transferred as military attaches
to Salvador, Chile and Colombia.

They were: Col. Omar
Torrijos, Col. Boris Martinez,
and Capt. Frederico Boyd.

did not carry out the American agreement. The three

apparently satisfying the leaders of the guard, Arnulfo Arias was sworn in as President two days
later--Oct. 1.

CONSUMER PROTECTION

Consumer crusaders can flex their muscle when the Federal Trade Commission opens public hearings Tuesday, Nov. 12, in Washington on what the agency should do to enhance national consumer protection and education. The FTC decided to hold hearings after publication last summer of a report by the District of Columbia Consumer Protection Program. The report found that low-income buyers in the nation's capital were frequently deceived by merchants through sharp selling and credit practices.

The report listed 22 kinds of deception involved in consumer complaints. Most common was the "bait and switch" advertising technique. A low-priced item was advertised to lure the customer into the store, where he was pressured into buying a higher-priced article. Other kinds of deceptions include false and misleading statements concerning the nature of products, services and guarantees, the use of fake contests for promotional purposes, and the sale of used merchandise as new. The FTC stressed that these techniques involved only a minority of District businessmen. More information is needed on the extent of unfair practices in other cities to complete a national picture.

The District report called for the establishment of state-operated trade commissions modeled on the FTC to solicit and analyze reports of unfair practices. At present the FTC lacks the manpower to police deceptive practices thoroughly. The report urged close cooperation between the mini-FTCs and neighborhood legal services.

Business interests are depicting the hearings as a publicity-seeking, anti-business show. But the resentment of ghetto consumers has contributed to some real spectaculars in Watts, Detroit, Newark and Washington. Sen. Warren G. Magnuson (D Wash.) argues in The Dark Side of the Marketplace (1968): "It seems undeniable that the scandalous gouging of minority groups by dishonest merchants and salesmen contributest to a potentially explosive situation in every ghetto in America and is one of many discontents leading to riots. This is a fact that has been too little recognized to explore."

Four score and seven years ago our fathers brought forth on this continent a new nation, conceived in liberty and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal.

Now we are engaged in a great civil war, testing whether that nation or any nation so conceived and so dedicated can long endure. We are met on a great battlefield of that war. We have come to dedicate a portion of that field as a final resting place of those who here gave their lives that the nation might live. It is altogether fitting and proper that we should do this.

But, in a larger sense, we cannot dedicate, we cannot consecrate, we cannot hallow this ground. The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here have consecrated it far above our poor power to add or detract. The world will little note nor long remember what we say here, but it can never forget what they did here. It is for us the living, rather, to be dedicated here to the unfinished work which they who fought here have thus far so nobly advanced. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us, that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion; that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain; that this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom; and that government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth.

URBAN BIKE PATHS...U.S. Department of Interior plans for increased recreational facilities for major urban areas call for 25 miles of bicycle paths for every 50,000 people. The Bureau has plans for over 100 thousands miles of new path and trail construction in the next ten years.

THOSE BOMBING 'PAUSES'

While we hear the caterwauling of certain candidates about stopping the bombing in North Vietnam and the frantic search for peace for political reasons, we can't help but wonder how the fighting men at the battlefield must react to such talk.

Anyone who thinks that North Vietnam can be trusted should be reminded of the following:

Sen. Jack Miller of Iowa points to the past six truce periods:

1. 48 hours at Christmas, 1966. During the period there were 101 violations by the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong, resulting in 18 killed and 60 wounded on our side, including 3 Americans killed and 27 wounded.

2. New Year's, 1966-67. During this period there were 169 violations, resulting in 20 killed and 198 wounded on our side, including 14 Americans killed and 27 wounded.

3. Tet Holidays, 1967. During this period there were 338 violations, resulting in 30 killed and 198 wounded on our side, including 17 Americans killed and 158 wounded.

4. Christmas, 1967. During this period there were 118

violations, resulting in seven killed and 44 wounded on our side, including two Americans and 24 wounded.

5. New Year's, 1967-68. During this period there were 170 violations, resulting in 73 killed and 279 wounded on our side, including 27 Americans killed and 191 wounded.

6. Tet Holidays, 1968. During this period there were 2,707 killed 11,519 wounded on our side, including 920 Americans killed and 4,561 wounded - plus 8,200 civilians killed and 22,000 wounded, and 623,000 civilians made refugees.

In face of these facts, it would be nothing short of suicide to put any trust whatsoever in the word of the Communist leaders, and it is time that we realize the only principle they understand is strength and the will power to make use of that strength.

SUNNY SIDE OF THE STREET

Shepherds in Palestine led a life of hardship. Wild beasts, extremes of temperature, deprivations of robbers, and a meager supply of food were among the factors which tended to make their task difficult. A shepherd carried a scrip containing a small amount of food, a sling and a staff. He also carried a sheepskin mantle, and a light tent, if he was far from home. His morning duty was to lead his flock to pasture. He watched the sheep, guarding them and himself against attacks of such animals as bears, panthers, wolves, lions. He was obliged to hunt for a lost sheep until it was recovered. At nightfall, the shepherd returned to his fold with his flock. Upon arrival he checked each sheep. His duty was to watch the entrance to the fold throughout the night. It was to such a company of humble men that the first Christmas carol was sung.

The sound of church bells ringing on Christmas morning gave Charles Wesley, the great Methodist hymnist, the inspiration for one of the most popular Christmas hymns. After serving as organist at the holiday service, he went home and wrote "Hark! the Herald Angels Sing!" a carol that is now sung all over Christendom.

Say what you please about moral courage, the man who has too much of it is very unpopular.

Keeping pace with customer demands for natural gas is expensive business, says the American Gas Association. Local gas distribution companies are expected to spend nearly $1 billion in 1968 to extend their systems and replace older facilities.

Modern expressways offer motorists some of the most advanced auto safety techniques known to researchers - absence of oncoming or cross traffic, wide lanes, paved shoulders, easy curves and reflective signs, pavement markings and delineators to guide the motorist on his way.

And yet, accidents still happen on them. To answer "why?" some safety experts point to the fact that many expressways have "designed-in" dangers, such as concrete-and-steel signposts and open-end guardrails that "spear" cars that strike them.

Many expressways no doubt need improvement, but most traffic safety experts agree that the modern expressway is "a good road crowded with bad drivers."

According to the Maryland Traffic Safety Commission, one of the most frequent causes of lethal expressway accidents is "tailgating," with an added danger that is inherent in high-speed driving, "blindgating."

Tailgating, of course, is the practice of following the car in front of you so closely that if it stops suddenly, you can't stop in time to avoid hitting it. Blindgating can occur, however, even if you're not tailgating.

Blindgating means that you're not far enough behind the car ahead of you to anticipate an obstacle in its path. In a blindgating wreck, you don't hit the car ahead; you hit the car - or other hazard - that he swerved out of your lane to miss! You hit it because it usually is stopped and your closure rate is faster.

The problem, says the Commission, is that most drivers learned to drive under the "old rule" - one car-length of following distance for every 10 mph of speed. Even worse, many drivers follow the rule blindly.

Most safety experts now advocate a flexible rule that would vary the following distance from one to three car lengths for every 10 mph of speed, depending on traffic conditions:

Allow one car length for every 10 mph in light traffic, only at speeds under 45 mph; two car lengths per 10 mph for moderate traffic at all speeds and three car lengths per 10 mph for heavy traffic. These rules apply for dry pavement conditions. For wet or slippery roads, add another car length per 10 mph.

And don't worry about cut-in drivers. They'll cost you a few seconds of driving time, but you won't be a blindgater... and you'll get where you're going.

William Feather, the Cleveland Ohio, house organ man, wonders:

"What prompts a man to drive a $5,000 car 10 miles out of his way to save 2 cents a gallon on gasoline?"

Simple, Mr. Feather. Same urge that makes a woman go the same distance to get a few extra trading stamps.

Volume Control. In the Hague, when an upstairs tenant refused to turn down his radio, a downstairs tenant chopped a hole through the ceiling, reached through and tried to club the man above with a stick.

NOW THE WORD'S 'GET A BIKE'--The St. Louis city fathers surveyed use of old horse trails throughout the city's parks, discovered that only a third were being used. In appropriate action the city council noted that bikes were bustin' out all over, and moved to pave the unused trails for cyclists.

If your plans for the upcoming Thanksgiving Day
weekend call for traveling by automobile, have your car
safety-checked and then drive
with due care and caution,
motorists were advised today by
Colonel E. I. (Mike) Hockaday,
the Superintendent of the Missouri State Highway Patrol.

"Don't be delayed on your holiday trip by a mechanical
breakdown," Hockaday warned.

"Check your car before starting
your trip. It won't take a garage man or service station
attendant long to inspect the
tires, headlights, signals, battery,
radiator, rear lights and windshield wipers and blades. A failure of any of these items

The Patrol Superintendent
reminded drivers of the need to
be extra alert for changing
weather conditions over the Thanksgiving Day weekend. He noted that this is the time of
the year when sudden snow or sleet
can quickly develop and turn a pleasant trip into a dangerous
one. Motorists were urged to prepare to adjust their driving to
weather conditions.

Hockaday also recommended
stopping for an occasional rest if
the trip covers several hundred miles. Passengers and drivers can use the occasion for a refreshment break and to stretch
their legs. Then everyone,

especially children, can resume
the trip less tired.

"If friends and relatives back
home are planning to see you Thanksgiving weekend, make sure the car you drive is in top
mechanical condition, and make sure you drive with prudence
and extra care," he concluded.

horizon, like the harvest moon is
the question, shall this generation witness the death or
the second birth of our nation?

FEAR: THE WALL
WORLD MUST RAZE

By Don Oakley
It was not strength but weakness that impelled the
rulers of Russia to order the
Czechoslovakia.

It was the weakness born of
stamped out with a ruthless,
overwhelming use of force, the
movement toward liberal
economic reforms and political
democracy in that small country
would gather increasing
momentum, endangering Communist rule not only there
but in the other Eastern European satellites, and
jeopardizing not only the
external but even the internal security of Russia herself.

Fear is a factor in the actions
an reactions of all nations, of course, including the United States. But there is a fundamental and
too-often-forgotten difference
between the international policies of the U.S.S.R. and the U.S.A. It is no less than the difference between totalitarianism and individual freedom.

The Communists fear and distrust people. They fear that if the people are left to themselves,

unguided by the firm hand of
the party in every aspect of their lives, they will stray from the Marxist-Leninist straight and
narrow and succumb to the seductive appeal of bourgeois
democracy and other such evils.
Americans fear and distrust Communists. They fear that if the aggressive and doctrinaire
nature of communism is not
restrained, the safety and future
of the democratic way of life, in our own nation as well as in the developing nations, will be impaired.

The one fear actually betrays
a lack of faith in the eternal
truth of communism. The other
fear sometimes seems to reveal
power.

Confusing this fundamental distinction between the Soviet Union and the United States is
the fact that intermixed with the
fears of both and underlying the
policies of both are certain
considerations of national security, which are the same for Russia today as they were when
the Monroe Doctrine was
promulgated.

Thus the "moral myopia," as Secretary of State Dean Rusk
calls it, of those who see no
difference between Russia
sending troops into Czechoslovakia and the United States sending troops into the Dominican Republic, or Russia
intervening in Hungary and America intervening in Vietnam.

the new Panamanian government
official U.S. recognition.
What happened was that the new military dictators, knowing
the United States was busy with
its own problems and had long
frowned on Arnulfo Arias, the
newly elected president,
proceeded to oust him on October 11, exactly 11 days
after he had been sworn in as president.

Here is a play-by-play account
of what happened:

Last May Dr. Arias, twice
before elected President of Panama, was elected for a third
time despite the flagrant
stealing of ballots. In some cases, the political opposition raided
the polling places armed with machine guns.

Despite this, Arnulfo Arias
won. He had the backing of a very heavy popular vote plus the support of the old Panamanian
business families which have comprised the ruling Oligarchy.

Opposed to him were the National Guard, trained and
equipped by the American

Czechoslovakia, Americans out
of Vietnam!"--is significant. So
also is the reaction of one Moscow man in the street, as
reported by a news service: "In
human terms, I feel sorry for
what is happening to the people
there, but Czechoslovakia is our military outpost and we must
small nations."

Were governments not governed by fear, the United States could disband NATO and
Russia could break up the Warsaw Pact. Both countries,
confident of their own strength
and the rightness of their
ideologies, could announce that
they had no more need of allies,
satellites or military outposts
and that henceforth the only
treaties they would make with
other nations would be those of trade and nonmilitary aid. That aid would go not to regimes but
to peoples, who would be permitted to work out their own
destinies as they saw fit.

Fear between nations will
not be banished in this century.
But if we cannot eliminate fear
today, neither can we permit it
to possess us, lest it blind us to
be.

H.L. Hunt Says

AN UNSUCCESSFUL POLICY

The new administration and
new Congress will have a shining
opportunity to phase out the
unsuccessful and extremely
costly program of foreign aid
which has been going on ever
since the end of World War II.

During all these years the United States has been trying to buy the friendship of foreign nations. It has not worked.

France, once saved from
communism largely by Marshall
Plan assistance, follows a policy,
that is openly anti-American,
not only in Europe but
everywhere else in the world.
India, which abandoned its
stated policy of non-alignment
United States after the Chinese
attack in 1962, used American-supplied arms chiefly
against Pakistan instead.

Pakistan, which our country
regarded as a bulwark against
communism, used the arms we supplied against India.

Yugoslavia and Poland have
together received about $3
billion in aid from the U.S. But Yugoslavia still votes against the
free world in the UN, and Poland has not loosened its ties
to the Warsaw Pact. Egypt sought U.S. assistance to feed its people and drew ever closer to Soviet Russia.

When a policy is proved
unsuccessful and government
should abandon it. For more than twenty years this country
has kept the multiplied billions
flowing out in foreign aid, while
the nations benefiting from it
have either delivered stern
lectures on the immorality of
attaching strings to that assistance or have simply acted
against U.S. interests even as they spent our money. Foreign

HLH

The headline on a newspaper story read: DIVORCE THREATENED IN DOUBLE
TRIANGLE. "What in the world is a double triangle?" I asked my husband, a civil engineer.

"That's what is known in engineering circles," he said, "as a sextangle."

An attorney was consulting with his client, a prisoner who had been given the death penalty. The lawyer said, "We'll have to forget our plea to the governor. He's been indicted himself."

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

Army. The defense department has set up special jungle training
in Panamanian jungles for U.S.
Salvador and Colombia, and the Green Beret forces which have to fight in the Vietnamese jungles. As a result, the Panamanian national guard is considered one of the most efficient police forces in Latin America.

However, it also has a monopoly on Panama's bus
transportation, and controls the
brothels, gambling houses, and Bolita. From long experience the guard knew that President Arias
would immediately cut off these lucrative concessions. It was reported well before his Oct. 1
inauguration, therefore, that a
military coup was inevitable.

The first coup was attempted
on Sept. 26, four days before
the inauguration. Another was tried on the afternoon of Sept.
29. Finally, on the evening of
Sept. 29, President-elect Arias met in a private home with the commander of the National Guard, Gen. Bolivar Urrutia,
where it was agreed that Gen.
Vallarino would not participate
in a coup but would be moved
to Washington as military attache. He could play an important part in the plans for building a new Panama Canal, it
was agreed.

It was also agreed that the No.
2 man in the guard, Col. Jose
Maria Pinilla, would replace
Vallarino as guard commander
for 45 days and then retire in favor of Col. Bolivar Urrutia.

However, the most important
agreement made at this secret
meeting was that three
troublemakers inside the
national guard who had been organizing a revolt would be
to Salvador, Chile and Colombia.

They were: Col. Omar
Torrijos, Col. Boris Martinez, and Capt. Federico Boyd, an organizer of the Panamanian Green Beret Corps.

With this agreement
apparently satisfying the leaders
of the guard, Arnulfo Arias was sworn in as President two days
later Oct. 1.

THREE TROUBLEMAKERS REMAINED
But the leaders of the guard did not carry out their agreement. The three troublemaker guard officers were

not transferred to Chile,
Salvador and Colombia, and the
top command did not carry out
its promised shake-up.
Finally, President Arias acted
himself. On Oct. 11 he ordered
the transfer of the three troublemaker officers who had been plotting a revolt against him. That same day he also accepted the resignation of Gen.
Vallarino and appointed Col.
Pinilla commander of the guard.

On that same day also the revolt started. The officers who were to be transferred took over.
Gen. Vallarino was vacationing on the island of Topago with his family. In his absence Col. Pinilla, the no. 2 man of the guard, was put under house arrest and Col. Urrutia,
no. 3 man in the guard, was thrown into jail until late in the night on Oct. 11.

By this time the junta had organized its own government, installing Col. Pinilla as a front
president.
Meanwhile Col. Omar Torrijos, the real ruler of the junta, was not only a member of the people's party of Panama, but his brother Moses Torrijos, a newspaperman, was sent to Moscow, all expenses paid by the Communists. Col. Torrijos' sister-in-law is married to Ricardito Soler, leader of the Chinese wing of the Communist party in Panama.

Boris Martinez, the no. 2 member of the junta, is commander of all the armed forces in Cherokee province, second largest province of Panama and was a former active Communist leader in the university.

These two, along with Capt.
Frederico Boyd, have now established the most ruthless military dictatorship in Latin America. There have been shootings, seizure of property, strict censorship. For the first time in history, the national guard has fired on civilians.

The activity of the military junta has solidified the civilian population against it and behind President Arias, who has now taken refuge in Washington.
Perhaps at no time has there been such unity on the part of Panamanians.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In the year of the minidress and bikini, California sportswear designers have launched a counterattack of long pants, long tunics, and long beach pajamas.

The pants, which opened the spring showings of the California fashion creators are flared and feminine, flopping around the ankles.

But the vests, another borrowed bonanza from men's wear, are as tailored as can be.

In a daylong show of sportswear, nary a skirt was seen, Alex Colman was the only designer to touch the basic shift at all. His were bright bold floral prints native to California.

The fabrics this year are active, washable anellars and polyesters. The colors are the American combo of red white and blue, and splashing prints in brown, black and white. Pastels are still a perennial favorite.

Whitestag has added to its classic line the new fashion concept of wide legs and tunic tops. Tunics often zip closed and have belts. And vests make a plain pair of pants into a suit.

Though pants are total, the fitted skin peeks out in the returning midriff blouse. Whitestag shows it in knit and Charm of Hollywood puts it over sheer voile bell-bottom pants called "See Legs" which are almost transparent.

Golf dresses, tennis dresses, wrapped front pants, disguised as skirts all point to the fact that California sports wear is more casual than ever.

"Our customers are having more time to play," said Alex Colman, "so we're giving them something to play in."

Resort Wear Cues Mood

THE TOTAL FASHION "Gloria," to mix or match is a superpackable, four-part knit. The avant-garde 3/4-length coat has patch pockets and French crystal buttons and a trim skirt (left). A long-sleeved pullover of cotton lace with knit turtle-neck and cuffs and tailored slacks (center) completes the costume. Wool knit coat and dress (right) has gleam of gold buttons down the front. Chic convertible collar and colorful waistline detail predict the look of fashion to come. Body-skimming dress is softly flared and boldly striped. These are created by Gino Paoli.

By HELEN HENNESSY

NEA Women's Editor

NEW YORK—(N E A)—The distinctive look of the new spring and resort collections provides a preview of the fashion future.

In the Gino Paoli collection, for example, colors and trends are cued in Paris and Rome a full season ahead of the American fashion scene.

You'll find such newsworthy fashion excitement as the graceful midislack, calf-length, somewhat wider than clam diggers and wickedly flattering. Skirts move away from the straight and narrow into eased drindl draping or pleats that open like flowers to reveal, in motion, subtle hidden striping.

There is movement everywhere. In cape suits that can be fingertip length or swing into hemlength costuming, there is a lean co-ordinate dress beneath.

The Rome influence comes on strong, knitted into a flurry of feminine ruffles in a little daytime dress and then is reflected once again in what might well be the most smashing look a woman could dream of for special occasion wear. It's a wisp of silk organza in a body shirt adrift with overall applique silk flowers that seem to float free. Add to this the discipline of knitted trim and a pleated skirt that flirts with the tailored look. The sum total is ultimate dash, with femininity.

Blazers become trail blazers

in a chic disregard for conventional blazer-stripe coloring. You'll discover such dramatic combinations as psychedelic pink, gold and black smartly blackboud, with black knit top and skirt completing the picture.

There's more dash and chic packed into this year's resort and spring collections than there has been in many a season.

Women's Club Activities

KEWANEE - The Women's Society of Christian Service of the United Methodist church met at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday with Mrs. H. C. Gill.

A prayer reading was given by Mrs. Gill, president, to open the meeting.

The group will send a cash donation to the state hospital at Farmington for the annual Christmas party and gifts for patients.

The program, "Existential Stance" was presented by Mrs. Hardin. A discussion by Mrs. Gill, Mrs. Hardin, Mrs. D. C. Barry and Mrs. Mildred Brotherton followed, defining today's changing theological concepts, and man's existence and place in the universe.

The hostess served tea, sandwiches, dessert and drinks.

NEW MADRID - Mrs. Algie Edwards was hostess to 12 members of the Woman's Club at 2 p.m. Thursday.

Vice president, Mrs. John A. Hunter, presided.

Roll call was responding to "How Can You, As a Woman, Help Your Community?"

A report on the sale of dogwood trees was given.

Community birthday calendars were distributed to members to be delivered.

Better means of contacting new residents were discussed following a progress report on the Hospitality Wagon.

A summary of the talk by Dr. George Wakerlin of Columbia Oct. 12 was given by Mrs. Hunter.

The district convention at Dexter, which Mrs. A. B. Moore and Mrs. John Edwards attended, was reported on by Mrs. Moore. The club received a blue ribbon for yearbooks.

Mrs. Katherine Kinnard, director of continuing education in Portageville, spoke on "Present Day Woman".

Mrs. Edwards presented Mrs. Kinnard with an appreciation gift.

Mrs. C. C. Fuller and Mrs. Moore served as co-hostesses.

Mrs. S. L. Hunter Jr. will be hostess for the meeting and gift exchange Dec. 12. A program on Christmas customs of different countries will be presented.

Tau Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi met, Nov. 5 at the home of Jo Ann Lee, 712 Mimosa Dr. President Gillie Russelburg presided. It was announced that sorority cook books had arrived and that plans have been made for the Christmas party Dec. 13. It will be a dinner with husbands as guests.

The program on poetry was presented by Neva Mae Taylor. She demonstrated how poetry was older than prose and had a musical rhythm.

Mrs. Dorothy Leffer gave a demonstration of the "Slenderama" reducing program by having Jolene Walker and Gillie Russelburg use the machine.

Hildred Poole sparked the Tuesday Morning Housewives with high game of 214 and Jean Lee had high series of an even 500. The Sparettes had both high team game and series with scores of 800-2303.

Gail Dement picked up the 2-5-10 split and Beanie Ralph picked up the 6-8-10.

The Sparettes overwhelmed the Road Runners, 4-0, the Hecklers won over the Rollettes 3-1, and all the rest split their games. Strikers-Alley Cats, 2-2; Winners-Town & Country, 2-2; Ten Pins-Whiffies, 2-2.

With the Newcomers, Norma Johnson had both high game and series with 175-464. The Gutter Dusters had high team game with 785 and the Percolaters had high team series with 285.

Margaret Moorman picked up the only reported split, 5-10.

In team action, the Percolaters won 3-1 over the Go-Getters, as did the Peanuts over the Sparettes, 3-1, and the Gutter Dusters split 2-2 with the Hi-Los.

Norma Baker blasted high scores of 217 and 589 for high game and series in the Delta Imperiaettes League. Reiss Dairy had high team game with 834 and Ziegler's Superette had the high team series with a 2337.

Jane Manley picked up the 5-6 split, Rosalie Snider, the 3-10 and Lois Cokenour, the 3-10.

Busch Bavarian 3 - Higgins Aircraft 1

I don't like to blow my own horn, but I did report a big split that I picked up, but it did not appear in the secretary's report to me. I believe that the 6-7-10 is worthy of mention, so I'm mentioning it.

With the Friday Bowlettes, Vera Gaston rolled high game of 217 and Darla Williams rolled games of 202-199-189 and for a big 590 series. That's great bowling. Rodgers Auto Sales had both high team game and series with scores of 1102-3126.

As was mentioned in last week's column, this league had position night last Friday and they teally celebrated; at least some of the did. Erma Wilson had a 563 series, Vera Gaston, a 565 series and Wilma Acord, a 505. All these girls bowl of the same team, so maybe they inspired each other.

The celebration carried over into the split column, also, it seems. Would you believe these splits???

Dorothy Reynolds 4-7, Bernice Sanders 5-6, Gerry Aldrich 5-10, Darla Williams 2-10, Loal Maevers 5-7, Carol Mercer 4-10, 5-7, Mildred Cockrell 5-10, Flora Hood 2-7, Irene Saling 2-7, Betty Kelly 4-6, Lillian Rennie 5-10, Charlene Hubbard 2-7-10.

Federal Funds For Ball Park Outlined

BY ROD TAYLOR

Sikeston Babe Ruth Baseball League Commissioner Bob Ralph presided over a meeting concerned with the need of another baseball park for Babe Ruth and Connie Mack play at 7:00 p.m. last night at the police station.

Ralph invited Bob Robinson of the Department of Community Affairs to come down from Jefferson City to talk to the representatives of civic groups about the project.

Robinson brought an executive of the bureau of outdoor recreation, Richard T. Loy. The Bureau is under the State Inter-Agency Council of Outdoor Recreation, an agency that controls the federal funds allotted to states for the development of recreational areas.

Loy discussed the government's underwriting of city park developments, outlining the procedure for getting federal funds. He explained that federal government would match each dollar put up by the city. This only applies under approved conditions and while the funds are federal money given to the states, the national government must give its stamp of approval to any project undertaken.

The money for these projects comes from the sale of federal property, the tax on outboard motor fuel, and the sale of Golden Eagle passports, a sticker required to get into national parks.

Loy stated that the city of Sikeston already had two projects in action under the aid program, city parks north of the Cotton Oil Mill and east of the old city office building.

He emphasized the need for haste in obtaining the towns share of the money for the buy of land. Loy explained that his bureau considers this operation two projects, buying of the land and developing it. He stated that if Sikeston submitted an agreement for the purchase of the land it would probably be approved within four months.

This approval must come before Sikeston can begin work on the project, and still expect to be subsidized by the federal government. The grant for development would take from two to four years.

Sikeston's share of the building of the new baseball park is undetermined but the share of costs for the purchase of the land would come to about $13,000, with the government paying $13,000. The land site tentatively chosen is 13 acres a tury.

When the subject of fund-raising came up, Loy stated that most towns of 20,000 or more passed bond issues to cover the costs, while smaller towns resorted to this procedure and to donations.

Bill Burch, president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, said that the JCs would be glad to take over the task of deciding on the method, and the obtaining of the necessary funds to match funds. Sikeston must raise 100 per cent of the costs for the project and the government would then reimburse the city.

The prospective cost of building a park on the land if acquired has tentatively been set at around $25,000, most of this cost being made up in light fixtures.

Any civic group or individual interested in this project may attain a meeting to be Monday at 7 p.m. at the police station.

Here are some second thoughts:

We could add hobby hauler to the list. Chevy trucks are great for rock hounding. Collecting antiques. Etcetera.

The point is: They're as versatile as anything on the road. Or off. Especially, four-wheel drive versions. They go anywhere.

Wherever you go, you go in style. Sleek front end features a new aluminum grille. In back, there's a new 8 1/2-ft. box on some models. Great for big campers.

Great under the hood, too. Six or V8. Standard on V8 models is a big 307 cubic-incher.

Under the rugged chassis, coil springs take care of bumps. Inside, thick foam seats take care of you.

There's a lot more. And more you can order. Like: power steering and air conditioning. See your Chevrolet dealer for all the facts and the good word on low price.

Hitting only one of two in Gideon 69, Hayti Central 49. The North Pemiscot basketball tournament last night, we'll know better than to stick with the coaches seedings from now on. We have limited space today, so we'll not go into detail.

NORTH PEMISCOT TOURNAMENT

Clarkton vs. Delta C-7 -- Coach M. M. McMahon of Clarkton has a boy or two injured... They are seeded second... We think they should have been third. They'll come out of this match tonight OK.

Gideon vs. Hayti Central -- One can't tell from one season to the next what Central will have, but one thing for sure, they'll give the Bulldogs a game... at least for one half.

Oran Draws Unanimous Choice

Oran drew a unanimous choice as the top team in Southeast Missouri in the first regular season basketball poll. Voting was by coaches, who are members of the Daily Standard sports panel. Five coaches from each of the three classes are members.

A major shakeup resulted from the pre-season poll conducted three weeks ago. Oran was in the top spot then but not unanimously.

Lilbourn moved into the runnerup role, pushing aside Scott Central for the number two spot.

Richland and North Pemiscot made their debuts in the poll, with the Rebels taking the sixth place spot and the Mustangs moving to seventh position.

Sikeston and Malden, with 36 points each, ended in a tie for eighth place, ahead of Scott Central.

Portageville and Charleston, which have yet to play, bowed out but were mentioned on some ballots.

The poll with first place votes in parenthesis and total points at right. Records are not available.

"Malnutrition is the big killer"

You hear it, over and over, in the children's wards of hospitals where CARE-MEDICO doctors and nurses are working. You see it in the gaunt bodies and faces of babies lying listlessly in their cribs, in young boys and girls ravaged by diseases a well-nourished child could withstand. By the time they're brought to the hospital, only the most skillful treatment can save their lives. Will you share the miracle of modern medicine with the needy in developing countries? Your dollars send and equip medical teams to help save the young, heal the sick of all ages, train local personnel. Mail your check today.

USS HORNET AT SEA-Boatsman's Mate Second Class George W. Hoots is the son of Mrs. William F. Hoots of Sikeston, Mo., not Mrs. George W. Hoots as reported in Saturday's Daily Standard.

Saipan, one of 15 Mariana Islands which form part of U.S. Trust Territory in the Pacific, was desolated in 1944 by the battle between American and Japanese forces. The World Almanac says. Today, Saipan's 47 square miles are still littered with twisted wreckage and even unexploded ammunition. Although coconuts, papaya and pineapple are raised, the most profitable crop is scrap metal from the war.

November 13, 1968

Dear Mr. Editor:

I always knew you to be a good and fair man. So, I'm writing this letter for your newspaper. That editor man from my town, won't print it. Don't know why, either.

My name is John Howard. I voted in the August 1968 primary in Charleston, Mo. I was a registered voter. Registered all legal and right.

From where I see the election, I think it was nice of the folks at the polling place to count my vote.

Especially since I couldn't read the ballot or sign my name. But, a relative, who knew voting was important to me, stood in for me.

Now, why didn't they let him vote for me in the November 1968 general election?

What's going down there in Charleston these days?

Dear Sir:

We received a letter recently from our son Larry Corn who is stationed in Vietnam and has recently been relocated with the First Cavalry Division near the Cambodian Border. With the letter he sent the enclosed poem which was an inspiration to us and we felt it would be to the many readers of your paper.

Mrs. Corn

THE SOLDIER'S

23rd PSALM

The Lord is my Commander I shall have no fear. He leadeth me into battle with His guiding hand and keeps me safe throughout. Yea though I walk through the battlefields of death I shall fear no enemy.

For Thou art my Leader. They leadership and love comfort me.

Surely victory will follow

all the days And I shall dwell in the army of the Lord my Commander forever.

Amen
by Larry Corn

Dear Editor:

Lest we forget. "All is over. Silent, mournful, abandoned, broken Czechoslovakia recedes into the darkness."

These are the words of Winston Churchill in 1939.

Now this sad, little country, after a brief flicker of freedom's light, again recedes into the darkness.

Benefits to Disabled Vets Will Increase

ST. LOUIS - More than 41,000 disabled veterans in Missouri will get $4,900,000 in higher disability compensation payments next year, the Veterans Administration said today.

P.S. Pollock, Manager of the VA regional office said the increase would range from an average of 8 per cent for veterans with service-connected disabilities rated 10 to 90 per cent, to a flat $100 for veterans with total disabilities.

The increase was signed into law Aug. 19, becomes effective Jan. 1, and will be included in checks starting about Feb. 1.

Pollock said, wartime compensation rates now range from $21 a month for 10 per cent disability to $300 for total disability. Under the increase it will range from $23 to $400. Peacetime rates are 80 per cent of the wartime rates.

COLUMBIA - Seventy 13, and library and foreign countries have 611 informational science 6. ## Maddox Offers Frogs To Farmers Ready to Make New Leap JEKYLL ISLAND, Ga. (AP) - Gov. Lester Maddox offers his personal bullfrogs to any imaginative Georgia farmer who wants to take a leap into a new agricultural industry.

Maddox, in a speech for the Georgia Farm Bureau Federation convention, said today he would like to see farmers use more imagination in selecting crops and animals to raise. "I understand that some Japanese farmers are making a good profit raising bullfrogs and feeding them chicken feed," he said. "With Georgia's abundant water supply, and with a little effort, we could be first in bullfrogs."

"If anybody would like to give that a try, I've got a couple of prime specimens you can use to start with out at the mansion," Maddox keeps several large frogs, given to him for entries in jumping from contests, in the mountain pool in front of the governor's mansion in Atlanta.

November 13, 1968

Dear Mr. Editor:

I always knew you to be a good and fair man. So, I'm writing this letter for your newspaper. That editor man from my town, won't print it.
Don't know why, either.

My name is John Howard. I voted in the August 1968 primary in Charleston, Mo. I was a registered voter. Registered all legal and right.

From where I see the election, I think it was nice of the folks at the polling place to count my vote.

Especially since I couldn't read the ballot or sign my name.
But, a relative, who knew voting was important to me, stood in for me.

Now, why didn't they let him vote for me in the November 1968 general election?

What's going down there in Charleston these days?

Dear Sir:

We received a letter recently from our son Larry Corn who is stationed in Vietnam and has recently been relocated with the First Cavalry Division near the Cambodian Border. With the letter he sent the enclosed poem which was an inspiration to us and we felt it would be to the many readers of your paper.

Mrs. Corn

THE SOLDIER'S

23rd PSALM

The Lord is my Commander
I shall have no fear.
He leadeth me into battle with His guiding hand and keeps me safe throughout.
Yea though I walk through the battlefields of death
I shall fear no enemy.

For Thou art my Leader.
They leadership and love comfort me.

Surely victory will follow me
all the days.

And I shall dwell in the army of the Lord my Commander forever.

Amen

Dear Editor:

Lest we forget
"All is over. Silent, mournful, abandoned, broken Czechoslovakia recedes into the darkness."

These are the words of Winston Churchill in 1939.

Now this sad, little country, after a brief flicker of freedom's light, again recedes into the darkness.

Business Posture Shifting

NEW YORK (AP) — Early in the 1960s the most frequent topic in executive speeches was business-government relations. Today, just as clearly, the subject is the social responsibilities of business.

Although not an infallible guide, executive speeches by their nature do tend to reveal what businessmen consider most pressing or disturbing or most worthwhile.

The first topic resulted from business anger at what it considered to be interference by the Kennedy administration in the market place, specifically in the pricing of goods, an area which business felt to be its own alone.

The remarks were consistent: government and business should not intrude into each other's areas. Each had its role, and if they were to play these roles effectively they had best keep out of each other's sandbox.

Among the projects: restoring the core cities, improving education, reducing water-air-sound pollution, training dropouts—all areas of endeavor by corporations with a growing social awareness.

Although some of the problems are indeed business-created, seldom in the past has business on a large scale attempted to seek solutions, for that was considered the job of government.

Broadly speaking, there are two categories in which business is participating:—First, as a corporate citizen concerned with the environment in which business exists and resolved to do something about it, even if it cuts into profits temporarily.

The insurance industry has pledged $1 billion toward the rehabilitation of core cities, for example, not unaware that if it doesn't improve its own neighborhoods it eventually will fail to obtain the clerks and secretaries it needs.

Just a few years ago many companies risked irritating stockholders by involving themselves. A reliable poll now shows 65 per cent of stockholders feel corporations should participate in the war on poverty.

Secondly, in search of profits. Perhaps belatedly, business has learned that there is money to be made in pollution control, in education, in slum rehabilitation.

The discovery, although new to most businessmen, was foreseen years ago by David Lilienthal, former chairman of both the Tennessee Valley Authority and the Atomic Energy Commission.

Lilienthal founded and now heads a private concern, Development and Resources Corp., that has been making healthy profits in areas once thought to be the sole responsibility of government.

QUICK QUIZ

Q—What is the so-called "Hot Line"?
A—It is a two-way telegraph teletypewriter line linking Washington, D.C., and Moscow. The line makes it possible for the President of the United States and the Russian premier to communicate directly if a crisis arises.

A—630-foot-high stainless steel Gateway Arch in St. Louis. The monument symbolizes Missouri's historic role as the "Gateway to the West".

Q—What is the meaning of the name Mia?
A—This Italian name means "mine; my own."

LEVI WASHINGTON

Drug Addict Sought

WASHINGTON—Levi Washington, a reputed narcotics-addicted artist who escaped from confinement in three New Orleans bank robberies, has been added to the FBI's list of "Ten Most Wanted Fugitives."

Washington and an accomplice allegedly participated in robbing three New Orleans banks of almost $37,000 between July 14 and Nov. 29, 1967. They reportedly took $13,949 from the Gentilly Office of the Ilibernia National Bank in New Orleans July 14, 1967; $14,057 from the St. Charles Avenue Office of the same bank on Sept. 1, 1967, and $8,578 from the Medical Plaza Office of The Bank of New Orleans and Trust Company on Nov. 29.

Washington and his alleged crime partner were apprehended by FBI Agents and New Orleans police on Jan. 27, 1968. Although both of the men were armed, they were given no opportunity to use their weapons.

While awaiting trial for the New Orleans bank robberies, Washington was transported to Chicago in May, 1968, to face prosecution for an armed robbery there in May, 1967, wherein two masked gunmen bound two nuns and a priest, shot at another nun and took almost $2,000 from a church safe. On Aug. 16, 1968, Washington, armed with a handgun, escaped from Federal custody in Chicago.

A federal warrant issued in New Orleans, Louisiana, on Feb. 29, 1968, charges Washington with bank robbery. Another Federal warrant was issued at Chicago, Aug. 17, 1968, charging and is considered extremely dangerous. Anyone with information armed in the past, has reportedly used disguises in holdups, has been known to use and distribute narcotics, harbors strong dislike for police officers and is considered extremely dangerous.

Business Posture Shifting

NEW YORK (AP) — Early in the 1960s the most frequent topic in executive speeches was business-government relations. Today, just as clearly, the subject is the social responsibilities of business.

Although not an infallible guide, executive speeches by their nature do tend to reveal what businessmen consider most pressing or disturbing or most worthwhile.

The first topic resulted from business anger at what it considered to be interference by the Kennedy administration in the market place, specifically in the pricing of goods, an area which business felt to be its own alone.

The remarks were consistent: government and business should not intrude into each other's areas. Each had its role, and if they were to play these roles effectively they had best keep out of each other's sandbox.

The second topic shows how much business' attitude has changed in these few years, for in concerning itself with social progress, business is taking on a role that customarily has been handled by government.

Among the projects: restoring the core cities; improving education, reducing water-air-sound pollution; training dropouts—all areas of endeavor by corporations with a growing social awareness.

Although some of the problems are indeed business-created, seldom in the past has business on a large scale attempted to seek solutions, for that was considered the job of government.

Broadly speaking, there are two categories in which business is participating:

—First, as a corporate citizen concerned with the environment in which business exists and resolved to do something about it, even if it cuts into profits temporarily.

The insurance industry has pledged $1 billion toward the rehabilitation of core cities, for example, not unaware that if it doesn't improve its own neighborhoods it eventually will fail to obtain the clerks and secretaries it needs.

Just a few years ago many companies risked irritating stockholders by involving themselves. A reliable poll now shows 65 per cent of stockholders feel corporations should participate in the war on poverty.

Surprising to some companies, unexpected profits sometimes do result from activities in the social area. One company after another expresses surprise today at how training programs for dropouts are easing their labor shortage.

Secondly, in search of profits. Perhaps belatedly, business has learned that there is money to be made in pollution control, in education, in slum rehabilitation.

The discovery, although new to most businessmen, was foreseen years ago by David Lilienthal, former chairman of both the Tennessee Valley Authority and the Atomic Energy Commission.

Lilienthal founded and now heads a private concern, Development and Resources Corp., that has been making healthy profits in areas once thought to be the sole responsibility of government.

QUICK QUIZ

Q—What is the so-called "Hot Line"?

A—It is a two-way telegraph teletypewriter line linking Washington, D.C., and Moscow. The line makes it possible for the President of the United States and the Russian premier to communicate directly if a crisis arises.

Q—What is the nation's tallest monument?

A—630-foot-high stainless steel Gateway Arch in St. Louis. The monument symbolizes Missouri's historic role as the "Gateway to the West".

Q—What is the meaning of the name Mia?

LEVI WASHINGTON

Drug Addict Sought

WASHINGTON—Levi Washington, a reputed narcotics-addicted artist who escaped from confinement in Chicago and is also charged in three New Orleans bank robberies, has been added to the FBI's list of "Ten Most Wanted Fugitives."

Washington and an accomplice allegedly participated in robbing three New Orleans banks of almost $37,000 between July 14 and Nov. 29, 1967. They reportedly took $13,949 from the Gentry Office of the Hibernia National Bank in New Orleans July 14, 1967; $14,057 from the St. Charles Avenue Office of the same bank on Sept. 1, 1967, and $8,578 from the Medical Plaza Office of The Bank of New Orleans and Trust Company on Nov. 29.

Washington and his alleged crime partner were apprehended by FBI Agents and New Orleans police on Jan. 27, 1968. Although both of the men were armed, they were given no opportunity to use their weapons.

While awaiting trial for the New Orleans bank robberies, Washington was transported to Chicago in May, 1968, to face prosecution for an armed robbery there in May, 1967, wherein two masked gunmen bound two nuns and a priest, shot at another nun and took almost $2,000 from a church safe. On Aug. 16, 1968, Washington, armed with a handgun, escaped from Federal custody in Chicago.

A federal warrant issued in New Orleans, Louisiana, on Feb. 29, 1968, charges Washington with bank robbery. Another federal warrant was issued at Chicago, Aug. 17, 1968, charging Washington with violation of the Escape and Rescue Statute. In addition, a Federal warrant issued by the United States Board of Parole, Washington, D.C., on June 6, 1967, remains outstanding and charges Washington with violation of the terms of his conditional release.

You Gain by Reading About Macabre Joke

SOMETIMES BUT NOT ALWAYS. By James Stevenson. Little, Brown. $4.95.

Joe is in the rather crazy business of thinking up gags (his self-imposed quota is 15 a day) to sell to cartoonists. He also dreams up occasional skit material for a black-humor television program which he despises, but which pays well when it uses an idea.

Having a large family, Joe has to scramble hard to keep the money coming in, and with a friend has been trying to interest a producer in a musical comedy they have written, hoping to hit a gusher.

So the situation of this novel provides an excellent opportunity for mocking the artificiality of the contemporary rodent race. But there is more to the story than that.

The boss of the television show thinks it would be a macabre joke to dig up Roscoe Ritz, who some 40 years ago had been a famous song and dance man on the vaudeville circuit. The idea is to make the old man think he has a chance for a comeback—but actually to make a fool of him on the show. Joe, a decent enough fellow, but trapped in the money scramble, reluctantly serves as an accomplice in this project. The outcome is not what had been expected.

The author happens to be a cartoonist as well as a writer. He has the artist's eye for the quick, telling imagery which catches the essence of a person or a place. He also has a good ear for the right word or phrase

When I Was A Boy

Since the publication of the late H. J. (Jack) Blanton's "When I Was A Boy" reminiscences in book form in 1942, they have become increasingly popular. All the books have been sold, and are difficult to obtain. Because of the increasing demand for these articles, the Standard is reprinting them during the next few weeks in the belief that its readers, young and old, will enjoy reading about the Monroe County of 70 to 100 years ago. Clip and save them.

THE BONFIRE

When I was a boy the bonfire was a popular institution in all county seat towns. It was a feature of celebrations that were held in honor of a political rally or a political victory.

All through the year grocery merchants saved empty tar barrels for bonfires. Local printing offices saved their empty ink kegs. All barrels and kegs were made of heavy oak wood, to which much of their oils would soak. They were the core about which boards, boxes, cordwood, and other inflammable materials would be piled. Once a blazing paper was dropped into one of them nothing could stop the fire until it had burned itself out.

To keep the bonfire going until everybody was tired enough to call it a day, fresh material had to be supplied as needed, for this job boys of ten ages usually were drafted. They requisitioned all the goods boxes that were piled in front of stores as signs and all that had been placed for safekeeping back of the buildings. Access to the latter was easy because of alleys which ran through each block in the business district.

Many merchants were unwilling to give up their boxes without a struggle, invoking the services of the nightwatch to protect them. This played directly into the hands of the boys, for while one bunch enticed the marshal to the west alley the other bunch would dash into the east alley, and vice versa. Incidentally, the officer's heart was not in the job, and he got as much fun out of what was happening to the merchant's boxes as the boys did.

The bonfire usually was located in the middle of a street intersection. Little children, as well as bigger ones, participated in the fun, dancing around the blaze and tossing paper boxes or other small articles into it. It was a tense time for the volunteer fire company, all members of which were expected to be on the alert in the event that sparks from the roaring bonfire set some of the neighboring roof on fire.

A feature of the evening usually was a parade to the spot from which what our society reporters call the "Honoree" was to address the multitude and promise to be worthy of their confidence and esteem. On one occasion here in Paris, the honoree was standing on a stout whisky barrel while speaking at an end when heavy paper boxes length. All went well until a and cartons came on the market.

Christmas Pudding

By MARY L. STOLLARD
PLUM pudding is sure of its place of honor on the Christmas dinner table. We could dispense with turkey and goose, we could even dispense with mince pies, but a Christmas dinner in Britain without the traditional Christmas pudding would be strange indeed!

The Christmas pudding as we know it today is a direct descendant of the old-time hackin, or plum porridge, beloved by our medieval ancestors. In those days it was made of beef or mutton broth thickened with brown bread, with prunes, raisins, currants, ginger and mace being added to the boiling mixture. This was served as a thick soup in a huge tureen and eaten at the beginning of the meal.

Our forefathers attached great importance to this part of their meal, for a very old custom enjoined that "the hackin must be boiled by daybreak on Christmas morning, else shall two young men take the cook by the arms, and run her round the market place, till she ask pardon for her laziness."

When Oliver Cromwell ruled England in the middle of the 17th century, he ordained that Christmas should be spent in prayer and fasting. All feasting and rejoicing were forbidden. But the English did not take too kindly to this order, and in many towns people rebelled against such extreme measures. Soldiers were sent to subdue the rebels, and there were reports of clashes all over the country on one Christmas afternoon.

The rioting broke out anew each Christmas until the Restoration of the Monarchy in 1660, when the people returned joyfully to their old-time celebrations and Samuel Pepys noted in his diary that he dined "on a dish of brave plum porridge."

In the 18th century, plum porridge began to change its character with the addition of flour. The porridge was thus stiffened into plum pudding and it became the custom to eat it at the end of the meal.

Nowadays, in addition to the basic mixture of flour, breadcrumbs, suet and eggs, the ingredients of Christmas pudding include raisins, currants, sultanas, candied peel, chopped almonds and walnuts, the grated rind of an orange and a lemon grated carrot and in place of the discarded mutton broth—a good measure of brandy, whisky or old ale. In many households the mixing of the pudding is quite a ceremony, with all the members of the family taking turns to stir and make a wish. A wooden spoon is normally used in pneumatic tires the demand became so universal that it was not long until the best wheels strongest could not furnish ones for $25 to $35. One of the most popular songs of that period was inspired then in existence. Comic pictures began appearing in American magazines about this time. One of them depicted an Indian sitting on a hilltop on his reservation watching a man on his bicycle in the valley down below, and making this comment: "Fool white man, sitting marriage, down walking." Those early day bicycles cost $100 or more apiece. With the coming of ball bearings and accordance with the old custom by which our ancestors honoured the memory of the wooden manger at Bethlehem—and the mixture is still stirred from east to west to commemorate the visit of the Wise Men. After being boiled for several hours, the pudding is heated until the time comes for heating it on Christmas Day, when it is brought to the table adorned with sprigs of holly and glowing from the flames of lighted brandy.

Even in Britain's armed services all the traditions associated with the Christmas pudding are observed by the cooks. In the Royal Navy, for instance, there is usually a short ceremony in the ship's galley when the puddings are being made, with the captain or senior officer having the first stir. In recent years another tradition seems to have taken firm roots. Each December the High Commissioner for Australia presents to the Lord Mayor of London a massive pudding (as well as 100 smaller ones, each weighing 22 pounds) for distribution to old people's homes. All the 16 tons of ingredients are provided by the Australian Fruit Growers Association.

Probably the most famous Christmas pudding of all was the one which Charles Dickens immortalized in a Christmas Carol. It was served at Bob Cratchit's Christmas dinner table, and was "like a speckled cannon-ball so hard and firm, blazing in a half of a half-a-quarter of ignited brandy, and bedight with Christmas holly stuck into the top. Oh, a wonderful pudding! Bob Cratchit said, and calmly too, that he regarded it as the greatest success achieved by Mrs. Cratchit since their marriage."

The Old Man of the Mountain, a 40-foot stone head 1,200 feet up Mt. Cannon in the White Mountains, is probably the most famous natural profile. The World Almanac says. When viewed from certain positions, a series of five ledges resembles a man's profile. Nathaniel Hawthorne roamed these New Hampshire hills and was inspired by the craggy human likeness to call one of his stories "The Great Stone Face."

Missouri Heritage

By Lew Larkin
Kansas City Time

HE was a legend 25 years before he died, a person eulogized by Lord Byron in poetry, revered by Presidents and regarded as the No. 1 pioneer scout, Indian fighter and frontiersman in America. Consider such a personality. He was a loyal husband and father, and one who never drank any alcoholic beverages or listened to or told vulgar stories. He killed many Indians but only in self-defense.

As a syndic (magistrate) he dealt fair and merciful justice to all brought before his "Judgment Tree."

He never shot more game than he needed for food. After land sharks beat him out of his acreage in Kentucky, he took it philosophically and came to Missouri where he got better treatment.

That was Daniel Boone, who becomes more unbelievable in time, born 233 years ago in Pennsylvania. Not all the legends are true. He never wore a coonskin cap. He did not talk much, and never bragged. But at 82 he made a trip up the Missouri river to Weston, stopping at Ft. Osage which a son, Nathan Boone, had a hand in building.

DANIEL was widely quoted even though his talk was laconic. Here are two of the best stories: Asked if he was ever lost in the wilderness, he replied, "No, I can't say as ever I was lost, but I was bewildered once for three days."

A missionary, noting Boone always brought his rifle to church, asked, "Why not leave your rifle behind, Colonel Boone, when you come to church? Don't you believe the Holy Book of God is sufficient protection?"

Boone parted the long rifle and replied, "Preacher the Bible's all right and has my good will and respect, but it don't kill wild Indians."

One of Boone's brothers was killed by Indians. Boone was not a large man, about 5 feet 10 inches tall, weighing 180 pounds; but he could outrun any white man or Indian, outshoot them all, trap beaver better than they could and smell trouble miles away.

While with Braddock's army in 1755 he met a hunter from Kentucky whose tales of that state mesmerized Boone. The next year he married Rebecca Brayn and several years later entered Kentucky through the Cumberland gap and began the construction of Boonesborough. Although he knew something about surveying, and signed up for considerable land in Kentucky, he lost out to land grabbers.

A son, Daniel Morgan Boone, had already come to Missouri and wrote his father glowing reports. In 1795, at the age of 61, Daniel moved to Missouri.

walking all the way. On his arrival at St. Louis, the entire city turned out to cheer him. Later he was given 345 acres of land on the Femme Osage creek. ON March 18, 1813, Boone buried his wife in a Protestant cemetery near Marthasville and marked a place next to her for himself. He then fashioned his own coffin of black walnut and kept it under his bed.

A stranger came to spend the night, developed a sudden sickness and died. Boone yielded up the coffin; the stranger was poor. Boone gave his own plot for burial of the man, and then marked a place next to her for his wife's grave for himself.

In the summer of 1820 he suffered a severe attack of fever while visiting his daughter, Mrs. Flanders Callaway. He was returned to his home in Femme Osage, suffered a relapse and died September 26, at the age of 86.

In later years Kentuckians, apparently feeling contrite, induced Missouri officials to allow the removal of the bodies of Rebecca and Daniel to Kentucky. This happened in 1845 and about 15,000 persons witnessed the event. But to this day there is argument about whether it was Daniel's body or that of the unnamed stranger which was taken back to Kentucky.

Mike Phipps of Purdue is the nation's only active college quarterback who gained more than 2,000 yards last season. He gained 2,020 yards, 1,800 while completing 118 passes in 243 attempts.

GOLDEN DAYS
Barefoot in the dust of summer.

Foot prints in the sands of time
Many moons have passed my darling
Since I thought that you were mine

I loved you, yes I really loved you
At the childish age of ten
And I'm sure I'll n'er forget
The fun we had a way back then

Daisies growing by the wayside
You picked the petals one by one Saying love me not, or please do love me
Are memories now a long time gone

You grew up and left the country
And the country girl behind
Met and wed another maiden
Another love I did not find.

Lonely were the days of summer
After you had gone away
Waiting, Watching, hoping always You'd come back to me some day

In the twilight of the evening
Of some times your face I see
In the shadow of my memories
Smiling once again for me.

Here are five tips to help make your every "hello" a real good buy:

1. Whenever you're moving to another town within the Bell System, let us arrange for your phone service before you move. If you know the address of your new home, we can make arrangements in advance so you'll have the exact service you want in your new home. We'll also refer calls from your old phone to your new number if you like. Just call the business office and ask about our Easy Move Plan. There's no extra charge.

2. Speaking of moving, we hope you realize that wherever you move in the Bell System, there is no color charge for the phones at your new address if you had color phones at your old address.

3. Ever wonder what to do when you get a wrong number on a Long Distance call? Just hang up, dial "0" for "Operator," and tell her what happened. She'll see that you're not charged for the call.

4. And if you ever lose your dime in an out-of-order pay telephone, just go to a working phone and report it to the Operator. She'll arrange to have your dime mailed to you. Also, if you give her the number of the out-of-order phone, we'll get it fixed right away.

5. Long Distance interstate rates are lower all day Saturday and Sunday, and after 7 p.m. each weekday. You can also save money if you call by number. A station-to-station Long Distance call costs about one-third less than a person-to-person call. At Southwestern Bell, our goal is to help you get the very best telephone service. We want your every "hello" to be a real good buy.

accordance with the old custom by which our ancestors honoured the memory of the wooden manger at Bethlehem-and the mixture is still stirred from east to west to commemorate the visit of the Wise Men. After being boiled for several hours, the pudding is stored until the time comes for heating it on Christmas Day, when it is brought to the table adorned with sprigs of holly and glowing from the flames of lighted brandy.

Even in Britain's armed services all the traditions associated with the Christmas pudding are observed by the cooks. In the Royal Navy, for instance, there is usually a short ceremony in the ship's galley when the puddings are being made, with the captain or senior officer having the first stir. In recent years another tradition seems to have taken firm roots. Each December the High Commissioner for Australia presents to the Lord Mayor of London a massive pudding (as well as 100 smaller ones, each weighing 22 pounds) for distribution to old people's homes. All the 16 tons of ingredients are provided by the Australian Fruit Growers Association.

Probably the most famous Christmas pudding of all was the one which Charles Dickens immortalised in A Christmas Carol. It was served at Bob Cratchit's Christmas dinner table, and was "like a speckled cannon-ball so hard and firm, blazing in half of a half-a-quarter of ignited brandy, and bedight with Christmas holly stuck into the top. Oh, a wonderful pudding! Bob Cratchit said, and calmly too, that he regarded it as the greatest success achieved by Mrs. Cratchit since their marriage."

The Old Man of the Mountain, a 40-foot stone head 1,200 feet up Mt. Cannon in the White Mountains, is probably the most famous natural profile. The World Almanac says, "When viewed from certain positions, a series of five ledges resembles a man's profile. Nathaniel Hawthorne roamed these New Hampshire hills and was inspired by the craggy human likeness to call one of his stories 'The Great Stone Face.'"

Missouri Heritage

By Lew Larkin
Kansas City Time

HE was a legend 25 years before he died, a person eulogized by Lord Byron in poetry, revered by Presidents and regarded as the No. 1 pioneer, scout, Indian fighter and frontiersman in America. Consider such a personality.

He was a loyal husband and father, and one who never drank any alcoholic beverages or listened to or told vulgar stories. He killed many Indians but only in self-defense.

As a syndic (magistrate) he dealt fair and merciful justice to all brought before him. "Judgment Tree."

He never shot more game than he needed for food. After land sharks beat him out of his acreage in Kentucky, he took it philosophically and came to Missouri where he got better treatment.

That was Daniel Boone, who becomes more unbelievable in time, born 233 years ago in Pennsylvania. Not all the legends are true. He never wore a coonskin cap. He did not talk much, and never bragged. But at 82 he made a trip up the Missouri river to Weston, stopping at Ft. Osage which a son, Nathan Boone, had a hand in building.

DANIEL was widely quoted, even though his talk was laconic. Here are two of the best stories:

Asked if he was ever lost in the wilderness, he replied, "No, I can't say as ever I was lost, but I was bewildered once for three days."

A missionary, noting Boone always brought his rifle to church, asked, "Why not leave your rifle behind, Colonel Boone, when you come to church? Don't you believe the Holy Book of God is sufficient protection?"

One of Boone's brothers was killed by Indians.

Boone was not a large man, about 5 feet 10 inches tall, weighing 180 pounds; but he could outrun any white man or Indian, outshoot them all, trap beaver better than they could and smell trouble miles away.

While with Braddock's army in 1755 he met a hunter from Kentucky whose tales of that state mesmerized Boone. The next year he married Rebecca Brann and several years later entered Kentucky through the Cumberland gap and began the construction of Boonesborough. Although he knew something about surveying, and signed up for considerable land in Kentucky, he lost out to land grabbers.

A son, Daniel Morgan Boone, had already come to Missouri and wrote his father glowing reports. In 1795, at the age of 61, Daniel moved to Missouri.

GOLDEN DAYS

Barefoot in the dust of summer.

Foot prints in the sands

Many moons have passed my

Since I thought that you were mine

I loved you, yes I really loved

At the childish age of ten

And I'm sure I'll n'er forget

The fun we had a way back then

Daisies growing by the wayside

You picked the petals one by one

Saying love me not, or please do love me

Are memories now a long time gone

You grew up and left the country

And the country girl behind

Met and wed another maiden

Another love I did not find.

Lonely were the days of summer

After you had gone away

Waiting, Watching, hoping always

You'd come back to me

some day

In the twilight of the evening

Of some times your face I see

In the shadow of my memories

Smiling once again for me.

few suggestions on how to get more out of your telephone service?

Here are five tips to help make your every "hello" a real good buy:

- Whenever you're moving to another town within the Bell System, let us arrange for your phone service before you move. If you know the address of your new home, we can make arrangements in advance so you'll have the exact service you want in your new home. We'll also refer calls from your old phone to your new number if you like. Just call the business office and ask about our Easy Move Plan. There's no extra charge.
- Speaking of moving, we hope you realize that wherever you move in the Bell System, there is no color charge for the phones at your new address if you had color phones at your old address.
- Ever wonder what to do when you get a wrong number on a Long Distance call? Just hang up, dial "0" for "Operator," and tell her what happened. She'll see that you're not charged for the call.
- And if you ever lose your dime in an out-of-order pay telephone, just go to a working phone and report it to the Operator. She'll arrange to have your dime mailed to you. Also, if you give her the number of the out-of-order phone, we'll get it fixed right away.
- Long Distance interstate rates are lower all day Saturday and Sunday, and after 7 p.m. each weekday. You can also save money if you call by number. A station-to-station Long Distance call costs about one-third less than a person-to-person call.

ELECTION 1968---STATE BY STATE

The election at a glance. Maps below show the nation's new political lineup in the presidential vote, Congress and governorships. States are divided in the congressional maps according to relative party strengths in Senate and House delegations.

The Republicans failed to win Congress in 1968 but have a golden opportunity to capture at least the Senate in 1970 when a majority of seats up for election—25 out of 33—will be Democratic. A net gain of nine would swing control to the GOP.

High Priestess Says Interest in Witchcraft Increasing in U.S.A.

EDITOR'S NOTE—At Halloween it's handy to have around an articulate practitioner of the occult arts in order to catch up on the latest doings in esoteric circles. Here, then, is a dialog with America's most famous resident witch, Sybil Leek.

By JOY MILLER
AP Women's Editor

Sybil Leek, who is fast becoming an elder statesman in the world of witchcraft, plans to become a U.S. citizen because she feels a great affinity for Americans.

Of course, says the British twice-widowed mother of two sons, most Americans have a way to go before they're spiritual enough to take on witchcraft.

She is buying a house in Melbourne Beach, Fla., to be the center of her numerous activities which include writing books and a horoscope column for a national magazine, designing clothes, marketing a medal of meditation made from sketches by her 16-year-old son Julian, who has moved to America too. Older son Stephen will come when he finishes his education in England.

Sybil Leek seems always on the fly (by airplane, never broom) to speeches, lectures and personal appearances around the country. With it all she remains remarkably good-humored. In recent years the only time she has considered seriously turning someone into a toad was when a well-known woman columnist described her as "a jolly little pudding of a woman."

Question. As a lifetime practicing meetings in Boston or Cincinnati, witch, do you think America is Q. Do you find that witchcraft is ready for a full scale witchcraft getting more prevalent in this addition?

Answer. Well it is not my in-A. I wouldn't say prevalent. The intention to try and convert America is increasing, but there is a i, but it happens to be the religious difference in being a follower gion that suits me and probably of witchcraft, being interested in it, will suit my children. America is and actually being initiated into entitled to have the many religions over the world is indeed increasing. Of course, in the race for material people in the various religions do not function within the framework of their religion as much as I do.

Q. What makes witchcraft so good for you?

A. It's very simple religion, very basic very down to earth. I think in these days when we are very tense, when the majority of the world is very tense, and given the problems which it doesn't seem to be able to solve, witchcraft is the answer because this religion doesn't ask man to be a god. It allows for his frailties it allows for the amount of good and evil that is in man.

Q. Sybil, I'm not trying to drum up trade for witchcraft, but could you explain how a housewife in the Middle West, say, who is interested in learning more of witchcraft can find out about it?

A. Well, it seems to me in witchcraft that when the time is right someone will be in your part that you can discuss this with. Witchcraft has always been hunted down verbally. It has never been a written religion, and so it is rather important to find a teacher. We work on the old guru system, and in this day and age when everything is instant, it is sometimes difficult to find the time to literally go sit at the feet of the master, and yet is the only way I really believe helps the religion function and to be maintained in the way it is.

A. Yes, I dedicated "Diary of a Witch" to my two sons. I was thankful for their understanding that made them think of me not just as a legend, which many newspaper men have called me, but also as their mother. I really believe so much in the family structure... When I came to America — a country which I am very fond of — I became aware of the strange things that had happened in the structure of family life. For instance, there is this tremendous thing of mothers wanting to relate to their sons on a brother and sister relationship. Now, I feel honored that my children call me mother. I want them to be my sons. I don't want there to be any mistake in this relationship.

Q. When you were in England you were high priestess of the New Forest coven?

A. Yes, indeed, and I go back twice a year to attend coven meetings.

Q. Do you find any to attend in this country?

A. Indeed I do. When I don't go to meetings in England, I go to

Q. Sybil, most people in this country, I think, look upon a witch as someone who casts spells or can use supernatural means to acquire wealth or to bring harm to others. Of course, in the race for material possessions America and many other countries have not kept pace with the spiritual evolution. This is needed. It is not enough to have two or three cars and two refrigerators and televisions. It's amazing how many men and women in the street are aware that there is something missing in their life. Orthodox religion doesn't seem to have quite fulfilled this and so they will look not only to witchcraft but to more unusual religions. They are seeking for the truth. They are seeking really for survival to relate themselves to other people.

Older son Stephen will come when he finishes his education in England.

Sybil Leek seems always on the fly (by airplane, never broom) to speeches, lectures and personal appearances around the country. With it all she remains remarkably good-humored. In recent years the only time she has considered seriously turning someone into a toad was when a well-known woman columnist described her as "a jolly little pudding of a woman."

Question. As a lifetime practicing meetings in Boston or Cincinnati, witch, do you think America is Q. Do you find that witchcraft is ready for a full scale witchcraft getting more prevalent in this addition?

Answer. Well it is not my in-A. I wouldn't say prevalent. The intention to try and convert America, but it happens to be the religious difference in being a follower gion that suits me and probably of witchcraft, being interested in it, will suit my children. America is and actually being initiated into entitled to have the many religions the inner circle. The interest all which it already has; my only com-over the world is indeed increasing. Of course, in the race for material possessions America and many not function within the framework of their religion as much as I do, with the spiritual evolution. This is needed. It is not enough to have two or three cars and two refrigerators and televisions. It's amazing how many men and women in the street are aware that there is something missing in their life. Orthodox religion doesn't seem to have quite fulfilled this and so they will look not only to witchcraft but to more unusual religions. They are seeking for the truth. They are seeking really for survival to relate themselves to other people.

Q. Sybil, I'm not trying to drum up trade for witchcraft, but could you explain how a housewife in the Middle West, say, who is interested in learning more of witchcraft can find out about it?

A. Well, it seems to me in witchcraft that when the time is right someone will be in your part that you can discuss this with. Witchcraft has always been hunted down verbally. It has never been a written religion, and so it is rather important to find a teacher. We work on the old "puru system," and in this day and age when everything is instant, it is sometimes difficult to find the time to literally go sit at the feet of the master, and yet is the only way I really believe helps the religion function and to be maintained in the way it is.

Q. Your latest book, "Diary of a Witch," an autobiography, has an interesting dedication.

A. Yes, I dedicated "Diary of a Witch" to my two sons. I was thankful for their understanding that made them think of me not just as a legend, which many newspaper men have called me, but also as their mother. I really believe so much in the family structure... When I came to America—a country which I am very fond of—I became aware of the strange things that had happened in the structure of family life. For instance, there is this tremendous thing of mothers wanting to relate to their sons on a brother and sister relationship. Now, I feel honored that my children call me mother. I want them to be my sons. I don't want there to be any mistake in this relationship.

Q. When you were in England you were high priestess of the New Forest coven?

A. Yes, indeed, and I go back twice a year to attend coven meetings.

Q. Do you find any to attend in this country?

A. Indeed I do. When I don't go to meetings in England, I go to

If You Were the Judge

Railroad Not Liable For Train Chaser

When Abner came down from the hills to report for induction into the U.S. Army he saw things that he had only previously heard about, such as people wearing shoes and liquor bottles with revenue stamps on them. But what fascinated him the most was the trains in the depot that were assigned to carry the inductees to their base.

Explaining to the station master that he had never saw a train before, Abner asked where he could catch the train that he was supposed to catch. Led to a platform, the station master pointed out the train and told the unsophisticated inductee to wait there for it. After a few minutes, however, the train began to pull out and Abner began chasing down the tracks after it. In doing so, he fell. Badly hurt, he used the railroad company for his injuries.

"Since I told the station master I had never seen a train before," Abner complained in court, "he should have made sure I got it on safely."

"The accident was his own fault," responded the attorney for the railroad company. "Since he had brains, he should have known better than to go chasing after trains."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit Abner to collect for his injuries?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! He held that if Abner had used a little sense and stayed on the platform, instead of chasing after the train, he would have avoided the accident; that by running after the train, even Abner should have known that he was chasing trouble and, consequently, was responsible for his own injuries. (Based upon a 1957 Georgia Court of Appeals Decision)

Dexter Calls For Bids on School Addition

MEETING with the board was Curtis Ittner of the William B. Ittner architectural firm of St. Louis. This firm has been the architectural consultant in the construction of other Dexter school buildings.

The plans call for four rooms to be used for a kindergarten to be constructed on the east side of the existing building and six additional classrooms to be built on the west side, with both additions to be connected to the present building.

Dexter voters gave an overwhelming majority approval

Curtis Thinks Coalition Might Be Effective

ST. LOUIS (AP)--Rep. Thomas B. Curtis, R-Mo., envisioned an alliance Sunday between Southern Democrats and Republicans that would spare President-elect Richard M. Nixon from facing a Congress controlled by Democrats.

Curtis said such a coalition could come about if 26 Southern Democrats were to vote with Republicans to elect Rep. Gerald Ford, R-Mich., as Speaker of the House of Representatives.

The veteran Curtis said such a vote would mean that Republicans would be chairman of all committees. He said the vote for Speaker would hold up through the election of committee chairmen.

"Perhaps the Southern Democrats will now feel they have less in common with the big city Democrats than they do with Republicans," said Curtis, who gave up his House seat in an unsuccessful bid for the Senate.

"Maybe it will be a Democrat-controlled Congress," Curtis added, "but I raise the question whether the Southern Democrats will again make the political deal with the big city machine Democrats that they have in the past, each taking half the committee chairmanships."

"It's not a good thing to look forward to at least two years of a President of one party and a Congress of another party."

Arrows on Coins
Some earlier U.S. silver coins have small arrows on each side of the date. This marking was first used from 1853 to 1855 to indicate a reduction in the silver content of the coins.

LUTON, England (AP) - Paul Sibley, 18, parked his car in a deserted spot Saturday night and turned toward Janice Eaves, his girl friend. Suddenly a flare lit the sky and two men began smashing the car windows with pickax handles.

Sibley tried to drive away but was stopped by a police roadblock. He had parked in the middle of a police ambush set for a gang's getaway car.

The police said they would pay for the repairs to Sibley's car. They said the detectives had attacked without warning in the belief that the car contained armed criminals.

"I am sure I will always be nervous going out in a car in the dark," said 18-year-old Janice, who was cut by the broken window glass.

Washington Awaits, With Interest, Report of Sen. Long's World-Wide, 'Fact-Finding' Tour

By JON COZEAN in the Kennett Missouri Weekly WASHINGTON, D.C. — One of the most rewarding moments in politics is watching a public official who asks not what his country can do for him, but what he can do for his country.

This helps explain the tremendous sense of gratification and comfort that has come to the supporters and friends of Sen. Edward V. Long (D).

Though he was defeated in his bid for re-election in the Missouri primary last August, Sen. Long has not been content to sit back and serve out his term as a do-nothing lame-duck senator.

Instead, the junior Missouri senator has unselfishly sacrificed his time and energy for the public good.

In the closing days of his senate career, Long has embarked upon a grueling fact-finding tour around the world.

Accompanied by his private secretary, Miss Helen Dunlop, Long is traveling at public expense to the far corners of the globe collecting data which will help the Senator to become a more able legislator during his last few days in Congress.

During his arduous journey, which began on October 6 and lasts until November 24, the Missouri senator will presumably interview the natives in such little-understood and mysterious places as France, Germany,

Curtis Thinks Coalition Might Be Effective

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Rep. Thomas B. Curtis, R-Mo., envisioned an alliance Sunday between Southern Democrats and Republicans that would spare President-elect Richard M. Nixon from facing a Congress controlled by Democrats.

Curtis said such a coalition could come about if 26 Southern Democrats were to vote with Republicans to elect Rep. Gerald Ford, R-Mich., as Speaker of the House of Representatives. The veteran Curtis said such a vote would mean that Republicans would be chairmen of all committees. He said the vote for Speaker would hold up through the election of committee chairmen.

"Perhaps the Southern Democrats will now feel they have less in common with the big city Democrats than they do with Republicans," said Curtis, who gave up his House seat in an unsuccessful bid for the Senate.

"Maybe it will be a Democrat-controlled Congress," Curtis added, "but I raise the question whether the Southern Democrats will again make the political deal with the big city machine Democrats that they have in the past, each taking half the committee chairmanships."

Curtis said a similar alliance might be worked out in the Senate.

"It's not a good thing to look forward to at least two years of a President of one party and a Congress of another party."

HUGE GLACIER HIDES STRANGE SECRETS!

Why would a beautiful young girl risk being drowned in an isolated valley in Alaska in which a huge glacier is breaking up? This is the question that perplexes Col. Steve Canyon when he lands to refuge at Elmendorf Air Force Base.

While he is there, the Air Rescue Service receives a report that a snowmobile party is moving into Kiooch Valley just below the glacier. If a piece of the glacier falls, it will raise the water level and inundate whoever is trapped in the valley.

Steve learns that the bold venture is led by Hiya O'Brien, daughter of an Irishman and a native girl. He learns, too, that a second snowmobile train is heading for Kiooch Glacier. This group intends to dynamite the ice wall to speed up its strange revelation. Can Steve save Hiya or ...

WILL SHE DIE IN AN ICY TOMB?

Hiya O'Brien knows what is hidden in the wall of ice. Now, fifty years later, the time has come for it to crack apart and disclose ... what???

The girl intends to wait for the normal spring thaw, but her competitors have no such plans - and their drastic action will lead to certain disaster. How Steve Canyon solves this spine-chilling problem is the thrilling new story in -

If You Were the Judge

Railroad Not Liable For Train Chaser

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

When Abner came down from the hills to report for induction into the U.S. Army he saw things that he had only previously heard about, such as people wearing shoes and liquor bottles with revenue stamps on them. But what fascinated him the most was the trains in the depot that were assigned to carry the inductees to their base.

Explaining to the station master that he had never seen a train before, Abner asked where he could catch the train that he was supposed to catch. Led to a platform, the station master pointed out the train and told the unsophisticated inductee to wait there for it. After a few minutes, however, the train began to pull out and Abner began chasing down the tracks after it. In doing so, he fell. Badly hurt, he sued the railroad company for his injuries.

"Since I told the station master I had never seen a train before," Abner complained in court, "he should have made sure I got on it safely."

"The accident was his own fault," responded the attorney for the railroad company. "Since he had brains, he should have known better than to go chasing after trains."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you permit Abner to collect for his injuries?

Today In U.S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Tuesday, Nov. 19, the 394th day of 1968. There are 42 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: Abraham Lincoln delivered his Gettysburg address.

On this date:

In 1497, Vasco da Gama discovered the passage to India around the Cape of Good Hope.

In 1794, the United States and Britain signed the Jay Treaty, adjusting issues left unsettled by the Revolutionary War.

In 1831, the 20th American president, James Garfield, was born on a farm near Mentor, Ohio.

In 1919 the U.S. Senate rejected the Treaty of Versailles after World War I.

In 1954, it was announced that the United States would build a radar warning system across arctic Canada.

In 1962, a jazz concert was held at the White House for the first time as Mrs. John F. Kennedy entertained the teen-age children of diplomats assigned to Washington.

Ten years ago—The United States said it would withdraw the Marines who had been sent to Lebanon six months earlier to investigate charges of intervention by the United Arab Republic.

Five years ago—Cambodia severed economic and military ties with the United States.

One year ago—The U.S. Federal Reserve interest rate was raised from 4 per cent to 4 1/4 per cent to bolster the dollar after devaluation of the British pound.

Rep. Tony Heckemeyer Elected Party Whip

JEFFERSON CITY—Tony Heckemeyer, who is serving his third term as Scott county representative in the state legislature, was elected Democratic whip at a caucus of house members of the party Monday.

Rep. James E. Godfrey of St. Louis was renominated for a second term as speaker of the house.

His election by the full house membership in January is considered a formality. Democrats control the House, 109 to 54.

GODFREY was unopposed in his bid for a second term of the powerful posts in state government. This was in contrast to a bitter caucus fight waged for the speakership in 1966 between Godfrey and then-incumbent speaker Rep. Thomas D. Graham of Jefferson City.

Two other top posts went to incumbents Monday. Rep. Patrick J. Hickey of St. Ann was re-elected by speaker pro tem, defeating Rep. Hardin Cox of Rock Port, and majority floor leader Richard J. Rabbitt of St. Louis was re-elected without opposition.

Woman Dies In Childbirth

BEAUFORT, S. C. — Mrs. Riona Jean McCrory, 20, died Monday, following childbirth.

She was a member of Unity Baptist church, near Benton, Mo.

Surviving are her husband, Cap. Morris McCrory, stationed with the marine corps; Darren Lee, infant son; paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Lynn, Benton; and Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Lynn, Sr., Benton, maternal grandmother, Mrs. Ona Eberhardy, Scott City; one brother, John Lynn, Benton; three sisters, Mrs. John Stuckey, San Antonio; Miss Lynda Lynn and Miss Catherine Lynn, both of Benton.

The body is being returned to Bisplinghoff Funeral Home in Benton.

Longtime Film

NEW YORK (AP) — Walter Wanger, a producer and motion picture executive for almost a half-century, died Monday in his apartment. He was 74 years old and had suffered from a heart ailment.

Born Walter Feuchtwanger in San Francisco, Wanger studied abroad and later was graduated from Dartmouth College. His father, Sigmund, was a wealthy knit goods manufacturer.

Wanger became a Broadway producer in 1917 and was in charge of the Paramount Studios in Queens. He entered the Army after the outbreak of World War I, was commissioned in intelligence, and was a member of President Woodrow Wilson's staff at the Paris peace conference.

In 1919, he joined the Famous Players-Lasky movie company in Hollywood. He went on to serve in important posts at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Columbia, United Artists and Universal. He was president of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences from 1939-1945. Among stars he helped develop were Greta Garbo, Clara Bow, Claudette Colbert, Charles Boyer, Henry Fonda, Madeleine Carroll, Hedy Lamarr and the Marx Brothers.

Let there be Light

THAT ANOTHER MIGHT SEE

Have you ever thought of living in a world of darkness or hazy dim? Can you conceive what it would be like not to see the beauty of a rose or an evening sunset? Have you thought of the number of hours spent in reading a good book or the joy derived from such a simple thing as reading the daily paper?

To thousands of people these things are impossible, but a whole new world would be opened to them by the gift of a donor's eyes. Anyone, regardless of age or general health, may donate their eyes that another might see. To give this greatest of all gifts, sight, is a very simple procedure but the wishes of those who desire to donate should be known to their next of kin for the operation of removing the corneas of the eye must be completed within four hours after the donor's demise.

For complete information concerning donating eyes, talk with your family physician or local funeral director. Both will do their best to see that your wishes are carried out.

Of all the ways that man can help his stricken brother, the gift of sight is one of the most noble, and truly in accord with the instructions of the master: "Help ye one another."

Man Killed, Three Wounded in Shootings

POPLAR BLUFF—Two shooting incidents in Carter County Saturday and Sunday have left three men wounded and one dead. Following a feud that began Saturday, a shotgun blast was fired into the yard adjacent to Dallas Delay's Auto Salvage on Highway 60 about three miles east of Van Buren.

Delay, who was standing near his house trailer, was struck in the back by one pellet. He was not seriously hurt. The incident occurred about 5:30 p.m. Saturday.

Highway Patrol investigators said Delay apparently got a high-powered rifle and returned the fire into an abandoned tavern building across the highway from his trailer. Troopers dug slugs out of the walls of the tavern and a building to the rear.

At 3:35 a.m. Sunday, bushwhackers fired at least six rounds from a deer rifle into the

Of Dexter Dies

TROY—Ralph E. Robertson, 65, a former resident of Dexter, died Monday.

He was born July 1, 1903. He formerly operated the Robertson Sign Co. in Dexter, and the Duck Inn Cafe near Puxico.

He married Lola Mae Corlew June 25, 1925. She survives.

Other survivors are seven sons, Frank and Dale Robertson, both of Davison, Mich.; Melvin Robertson, Kansas City; Dean Robertson, Pasadena, Tex.; Kenneth Robertson, St. Louis; Johnny Robertson, Moscow Mills; and Ronald Robertson, Windfield; one daughter, Mrs. Jeannette Cline, Wyoming, W. Va.; three brothers, Roy and Walter Robertson, both of Kansas City; and Carl Robertson, Exeter, Calif.; and 24 grandchildren.

Services will be at 10 a.m. Thursday in the Watkins and Sons Funeral Chapel in Dexter. Burial will be in the Pleasant Valley cemetery.

Shelton's body was taken to the Pewitt-Sloan Funeral Home in Van Buren, Barney Samples was taken to the Veterans Administration Hospital and Murl was taken to the Doctors Hospital. The brothers were reported in satisfactory condition.

Delay faces two charges of stealing a motor vehicle, according to the office of the Carter county circuit clerk. One of the charges involves the theft of a dump truck from Bluff City Motors in Poplar Bluff.

A suit against Dallas and Ernest Delay's junkyard, brought by the state highway Department is pending in the court.

In another development Harold Starks was arraigned in Carter county magistrate court on a charge of felonious assault. He allegedly assaulted James Samples, a younger brother of the wounded men, with a pistol and a beer bottle.

A preliminary hearing for Starks was set for Nov. 27.

Barney Samples home in the Eastwood community south of Van Buren.

John Spencer Shelton, 65, of Van Buren, who was staying at the Samples home, was struck in both legs by bullets. An artery was severed and he bled to death before an ambulance arrived.

Samples, 51, was shot in the upper chest, with the slug ranging deep into his arm under his shoulder.

Samples' brother, Murl Frank Samples, 33, was struck in the left hip.

Shelton and Barney Samples were reported seated on a couch and Murl was standing nearby when the shots crashed into the house. The weapon was believed to be a 30/06 rifle.

Barney's wife, Mildred, was in another room and was not hit. The men were waiting for breakfast to be prepared.

Mrs. Sample said she saw a car pass the house on highway F. eastbound. She said the car apparently turned around and came back, with an occupant spraying the premises with bullets.

She said she heard eight shots.

Barney Samples is a logger and Shelton was a retired laborer who had been visiting the Samples.

Rep. Tony Heckemeyer Elected Party Whip

JEFFERSON CITY—Tony Heckemeyer, who is serving his third term as Scott county representative in the state legislature, was elected Democratic whip at a caucus of house members of the party Monday.

Rep. James E. Godfrey of St. Louis was re-nominated for a second term as speaker of the house.

His election by the full house membership in January is considered a formality. Democrats control the House, 109 to 54.

GODFREY was unopposed in his bid for a second two-year term as speaker, one of the most powerful posts in state government. This was in contrast to a bitter caucus fight waged for the speakership in 1966 between Godfrey and then-incumbent speaker Rep. Thomas D. Graham of Jefferson City.

Two other top posts went to incumbents Monday. Rep. Patrick J. Hickey of St. Ann was re-elected by a overwhelming majority as speaker pro tem, defeating Rep. Hardin Cox of Rock Port, and majority floor leader Richard J. Rabbitt of St. Louis was re-elected without opposition.

Longtime Film Executive Dies

NEW YORK (AP) - Walter Wanger, a producer and motion picture executive for almost a half-century, died Monday in his sleep at his Manhattan apartment. He was 74 years old and had suffered from a heart ailment.

Born Walter Feuchtwanger in San Francisco, Wanger studied abroad and later was graduated from Dartmouth College. His father, Sigmund, was a wealthy knit goods manufacturer.

Wanger became a Broadway producer in 1917 and was in charge of the Paramount Studios in Queens. He entered the Army after the outbreak of World War I, was commissioned in intelligence, and was a member of President Woodrow Wilson's staff at the Paris peace conference.

In 1919, he joined the Famous Players-Lasky movie company in Hollywood. He went on to serve in important posts at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Columbia, United Artists and Universal. He was president of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences from 1939-1945.

Among stars he helped develop were Greta Garbo, Clara Bow, Claudette Colbert, Charles Boyer, Henry Fonda, Madeleine Carroll, Hedy Lamarr and the Marx Brothers.
